

Bridgend Borough remembers them...

Fugitive evaded police for 16 years

A BUILDER who succeeded in evading police who had a warrant for his arrest for 16 years, has been jailed for 10 months at Cardiff Crown Court.

For every one of those years said barrister Nicholas Gedge, 60-year-old Peter Nevell, had been looking over his shoulder.

Nevell, of Rowan Drive, Porthcawl, had admitted possessing amphetamine in April 1994 and dangerous driving and assaulting the police in January 1995.

CROWN COURT REPORT by AJ SICLUNA

At the latest hearing, he admitted a charge of absconding while on bail.

Nevell had pleaded not guilty to stealing an £800 Giro cheque and the prosecution offered no evidence.

Recorder Huw Rees said: "He was at large for a remarkably long time. It is a highly unusual case."

He told Nevell: "You should have been sentenced in 1995, but you made a conscious decision to abscond and flagrantly breached your bail. You even went abroad and obtained employment. You returned about six years ago, but you continued to avoid justice.

"You were always wily enough to avoid detection. A deterrent sentence is called for."

Prosecutor Ruth Smith said that in April 1994, two police officers were on duty in Mary Street, Porthcawl, and saw Nevell parking his car. They approached and he began shouting obscenities at them.

When they said they wanted to search him, he became agitated.

The officers found 36.5 grammes of amphetamine.

Nevell said it was for personal use and he had "been using it for years."

On January 13, 1995, while on bail, police officers saw Nevell driving at high speed through the centre of Bridgend.

He was seen to pull across the paths of oncoming vehicles.

Nevell accelerated away from the officers, turned his vehicle around, and gave the police a 'V' sign.

At 80 miles per hour, he headed for Newton, the vehicle zig-zagging across the road and crossing double white lines.

Nevell reached the M4 and the pursuing police were unable to close with him.

A police patrol car joined in the chase as Nevell hit 90 miles per hour, exiting at the Pencoed intersection where he suddenly lost control.

Ms Smith said that he left the car and kicked out at one of the officers, and burned one on the wrist with a cigarette lighter.

A civilian in the vicinity helped to subdue Nevell.

"He was in a raging temper, spitting and shouting," said Ms Smith.

Communities pay their tributes to the fallen

THOUSANDS of people in towns, villages and hamlets across Bridgend County Borough attended Cenotaphs on Remembrance Sunday to pay tribute to those who sacrificed their lives in the cause of freedom.

Among those attending were members of the Armed Forces, the Royal British Legion, Merchant Seamen, local dignitaries and youth organisations.

In recent years, there has been a significant increase in the number of young people paying their respects – possibly because the recent conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq have reinforced the sacrifices made by Servicemen and the families.

In the 90th anniversary year of the Royal British Legion, 'Remembrance' remains as important as it ever was to local communities – as was clearly demonstrated at the weekend.

Leader thanks The GEM as borough Follows the Flame to 2012 Olympics

MANY thanks for your recent publicity on the Following the Flame exhibition and the Olympic Torch Relay that will pass through Bridgend on 26 May 2012.

Encouraging residents to keep active and lead healthier lifestyles is something we are committed to at BCBC. Coming together as a community and celebrating Wales' sporting heritage is another way of highlighting the benefits of sport and raising the aspirations of young future athletes.

The Following the Flame exhibition is a fantastic opportunity for local people to experience the journey of the Olympic Games, from its origins in ancient Greece, through to Welsh hopefuls aiming to compete in London 2012 next year.

Visitors will also get to experience an array of photographs, history, art and sporting memorabilia that celebrates the successes of past Welsh Olympians and Paralympians.

School sessions are proving to be extremely popular and are now fully booked, but can I remind readers that the exhibition at Bridgend Recreation Centre is open to the public until January 11, 2012, on Tuesday – Thursdays at 4 - 8pm and on Sundays from 11am - 4pm.

I am also looking forward to an official visit on Friday, November 18 by Paul Deighton, CEO of the London Olympic Games Organising Committee, who is coming to view the exhibition, as well as some of our other services.

It will be great to show him how Bridgend county borough is embracing London 2012.

The forthcoming Olympics is a positive and exciting event on Britain's calendar that I hope the local community will get involved with.

I was so pleased to celebrate the news about the Torch Relay Route in May with schoolchildren from Bryncethin Primary School and it was a pleasure to see their excitement at the prospect of seeing this iconic symbol passing through our borough.

I will certainly be joining them to cheer on the torchbearers. COUN MEL NOTT (Leader, Bridgend County Borough Council)

Flying Start for families expands in Cornelly and Pyle

THE successful 'Flying Start' Programme is being extended to include children and their families in more streets at North Cornelly and Pyle.

From January, children aged three and under and their families living at these addresses will become eligible for Flying Start services, a BCBC spokesperson said.

The Flying Start programme is a Welsh Government funded initiative, which aims to provide both early years care and education and to develop a strong partnership with families and other services that cater for young children, such as health.

The programme entitles children three and under and their families to intensive Health Visitor and Midwifery support, free high quality childcare provision for two-year-olds, parenting programmes and family support services, together with other additional services which aim to support children's development, health and wellbeing.

Tina Haddon, Flying Start Team Manager, said: "Flying start offers quality environments, well planned activities and lots of opportunities for your child to explore and be curious about their world.

"This expansion into the Cornelly and Pyle areas will be achieved from January 2012. However, the Welsh Government has announced the 'doubbling' of Flying Start across Wales from April 2012, which will enable the further expansion of the programme across additional areas in Bridgend."

Broadway bounces back

AFTER last year's sell-out performance, Saturday, November 26 sees another in the popular series of 'Broadway' shows at the Grand Pavilion, Porthcawl.

This year, it's called Broadway's Back (and just in time for Christmas), and sees the welcome return of the RAF St Athan Voluntary Band to the Pavilion stage.

Since last year's production, the band has won prizes at the National Eisteddfod and the Miner's Welfare Brass Band Contest, and will be joined on this occasion by members of Bridgend Youth Dance.

The Broadway Chorus, part of Porthcawl Amateur Operatic Society, provides much of the music, presenting solos and choruses from shows such as South Pacific, Carousel, Wizard of Oz, Mary Poppins and Wicked.

The Broadway Babes, the youngest performers, who seemed to steal the show last year, are also taking part.

As the title of the show suggests, a number of well known items of Christmas music will also make an early festive appearance.

The organisers of Broadway's Back were delighted with how last year's show was received, and look forward to presenting another exciting evening of live music.

Tickets for the show, which starts at 7.30pm are available on 01656 788148, or from the Pavilion box office on 01656 815995 and cost £9 (£8 cons).

History talk on Margam castle

SKER WI NEWS

AT a recent meeting of Sker WI in St David's Church Hall, Nottage, the president welcomed 48 members and two visitors.

Final arrangements were made regarding the forthcoming Christmas fair, to be held on November 18, at Trinity Church Hall, Porthcawl, from 10am.

Ros Hopper reported on the autumn council meeting held in Port Talbot and the speaker for the evening, Mr Alan Adams from Swansea College, gave an interesting talk on Margam Castle.

The castle was built between 1830 and 1840 and was originally owned by the Mansel Talbot family. During World War 2, it was used by British and American forces and fell into disrepair after the war ended.

It was purchased by the local authority in the 1970s and Mr Adams helped to restore the stained glass window in the castle which took three years – part time – to complete.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday December 8, and is 'Party Time', which will include entertainment by the drama group. AV

AM and union urges festive shoppers to 'Keep their cool'

JANICE GREGORY AM for Omore, joined members of the shopworkers' union Usdaw at a campaign event in the Welsh Assembly, to launch this year's Respect for Shopworkers Week.

During the campaign week, the shopworkers union urged shoppers to remember to 'Keep their cool at Christmas'.

Udaw's latest survey reveals that in the last 12 months, 6 per cent of shopworkers had been subjected to violent attack, 37 per cent had been threatened and a massive 70 per cent had suffered verbal abuse.

Nearly half of all incidents of abuse resulted from requests for proof of age or refusing a sale of an age-restricted product.

John Hannett, Usdaw General Secretary, said: "Every minute of every day a shopworker is assaulted, threatened or abused. While our Freedom From Fear campaign helps to raise awareness of the problem and reduce the number of incidents, the level of violence and abuse faced by shopworkers remains shocking and totally unacceptable.

"Our campaign highlights the problems shopworkers face, particularly during the festive season when incidents of verbal abuse can increase dramatically. In the run-up to Christmas, customers are stressed, stores are busy and sometimes things can boil over. That's why we are asking shoppers to show respect for shopworkers and to 'Keep your cool at Christmas'."

Ms Gregory AM commented: "Retailers and their staff provide a tremendous service, especially in the run-up to Christmas, when demand is very high and stores are busy. Shopworkers deserve respect and they have my full support.

"I hope that everyone in our area gets their Christmas shopping done with the minimum of stress."

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

ONCE again, we have Christmas lights being erected all over Porthcawl. May I suggest that in future years, the cost of all these poor displays be put together and a tidy display placed in one area – eg the police station or bandstand areas where local school children and local charities can put on displays of carol singing and Christmas enjoyment?

John Clatworthy, Porthcawl.

HIGH TIDE TIMES (UNTIL NOVEMBER 24)

The high tides listed in this week's GEM are those in Porthcawl. It should be remembered that along the coast, high tide times will vary. For instance, in Barry, the high point will be 20 – 25 minutes later.

Royal British Legion marks Armistice Day

THE Armistice Day ceremony was observed in Porthcawl with a two-minute silence at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, to commemorate the signing of the Armistice in 1918 which ended the Great War, and to remember those who died in that War and in wars and conflicts ever since.

There was a very good turnout again this year for the Armistice Day ceremony in John Stree, with crowds lining the street either side of The Bandstand. There was also a strong representation by children from Newton Primary School, New Road, Porthcawl.

The chairman of the Porthcawl branch of the Royal British Legion, Ruth Birch, introduced the Armistice Day ceremony, while the chaplain of the Porthcawl branch, Rev Canon Philip Masson, conducted the Service of Remembrance. The president of the Porthcawl branch, Lt Col Stephen Rock, TD, recited the Exhortation; and Legionnaire John David MBE, gave the Kohima Epitaph. His journey started in Katmandu with a six-hour bus journey and a three-hour walk to the village.

The existing schools have been repaired or rebuilt and they are well-used. From his photos, the children looked fine in their uniforms.

He was thanked by Margaret Aylen.

Tariff cuts blow to the local families fighting fuel poverty

THE decision to hasten cuts in tariffs by December 12, for domestic solar installations is a sickening blow to local low-income families fighting fuel poverty.

It also undermines community groups working in areas of older housing stock, where houses have poor levels of energy efficiency, i.e. much of Wales.

The GCEL (Green Community Energy Ltd) consortium of charities and social enterprises, based in south Wales, works to link the carbon economy with fuel poverty, by using the 'Feed in Tariff'.

The urgency of this work has been regularly underlined by government statements in Wales and the UK. The Coalition pledged to "encourage community owned energy where local people benefit from the power produced".

But the bombshell that solar licences on domestic properties must be signed by December 12 this year undermines all GCEL's community development work.

Not only does this contradict the government line on why we need to cut carbon, it hits working families, the unemployed, and the elderly who might have benefited from tariffs paid for solar installations.

Ordinary people could have become energy providers. Instead they must remain passive consumers at the mercy of the market.

What should have occurred is an extension of the 'Feed-In Tariff' scheme payable to community-based projects supporting those on low income. Instead, there is an effective 50 per cent cut in the fledgling home solar industry and an abandonment of 'The Big Society' ideology - communities taking responsibility for themselves.

This is shocking government doublespeak, at a time when many of us were convinced we were working towards a fairer, greener society. I urge everyone to demand that the December 12 deadline is scrapped, so that community groups, such as GCEL, are not left high and dry.

Heritage work at Ogmore Valley wins thumbs-up from regional AM

WORK being done to promote heritage and tourism in the Ogmore Valley has won approval from a regional AM.

Byron Davies, Welsh Conservative AM for South Wales West, visited Ogmore Vale and Nantymoel, where he met members of the Ogmore Valley Community Council which has been promoting its Time Travel project.

The council has worked in conjunction with Bridgend County Borough Council and the Ogmore Valley Historical and Heritage Society to restore two elements of the valley's history – the platform at the site of the old railway station in Ogmore Vale and the clock at Pricetown Square.

Mr Davies met up with councillors in Ogmore Vale when the history of the project was outlined by chairman Margaret Jenkins.

He was shown the old station site, where the council has had the platform reinstated with new paving slabs and slate, which is being carved by a local artist with symbols signifying various aspects of valley life.

Trees have also been planted and seats installed to make the platform a focal point for the many cyclists and walkers who use the community route which passes along the track of the old railway line.

The party then went to Pricetown, where progress on restoring the clock was inspected. The clock has been put back into working order and the steps around it are being removed to reduce anti-social behaviour problems for nearby residents as it had become a gathering place for local youngsters.

A new set of railings is being placed around the clock which stands on a brick column.

"I was very impressed with the work being done by the community council," said Mr Davies. "The former mining valleys are areas of great natural beauty and they also have an interesting industrial and social history which can be promoted to bring visitors in."

"Ogmore council has been the catalyst here with this project and I was particularly pleased with their plans to put in information posts which can be accessed with iPhones."

Council clerk Louvain Lake explained that the historical society members have been interviewing older residents for their memories of life in the past – about the pits, the railway line and other aspects of valley history. These recordings will be edited and will be available to visitors.

She said: "It's all about encouraging people, especially the youngsters, to learn about the history of their own community and also to give visitors somewhere to go and hear about these things."

"We hope that people will now stop at the old station rather than just cycle or walk past. It's about restoring pride in the valley as well."

The project has cost £80,000 so far, with grants from various bodies and some of the community council's own money as well.

The railway station closed in the 1950s when passenger trains ceased but coal trains travelled up the valley until the closure of the last pit – Wyndham Western – in 1985.

The clock was put up by the Ogmore Valley Medical Aid Society when it disbanded following the establishment of the NHS in 1948. Some of the money in its funds was used to provide a clock for the community.

Byron Davies added: "I was also told about the Gwalia Stores, which were located by the railway station and which have been moved to St Fagan's."

"They are now one of the most popular attractions at the museum, and I will look at the former general stores with a fresh eye during my next visit having seen where they were originally located."

MAESTEG Air Cadets are holding an open day at their headquarters in Upper Street, Maesteg this Saturday, November 19, from 10am-1pm.

During the day, the cadets will showcase their activities for parents, friends, potential recruits and anybody interested in learning more about the cadets' activities.

The cadets of 631 (Maesteg) Squadron Air Training Corps will have a number of demonstrations – including foot drill and first aid, as well as field cooking, when visitors will be able to taste the food cooked by cadets when they take part in the expedition section of the Duke of Edinburgh's Award.

Visitors will also be able to try their hand on the squadron's flight simulator which will enable them to experience flying the Grob Tutor at St Athan; Maesteg cadets regularly get the chance to fly the real thing at St Athan with No 1 Air Experience Flight of the Royal Air Force.

Visitors can attempt an aircraft recognition competition and see displays of squadron activities. The cadets will also show photos of recent activities, including this year's annual camp at the Tucano base at Royal Air Force Linton on Ouse in Yorkshire and gliding at Swansea airport.

Flight Lieutenant Anthony Davies, Commanding Officer of 631 Squadron said: "Our cadets are proud of their Squadron and are extremely keen to host this open day."

631 (Maesteg) Squadron meet on Monday and Friday evenings at Upper Street Maesteg, and is open to boys and girls age 13 and over.

Townswomen's Guild hand over cheque for the Air Ambulance

CHAIRMAN Dee Richardson thanked all who had attended on such a wet day and presented flowers to one of the members, who was celebrating a special birthday.

Our monthly report from the twin guild at Mansfield was, as usual, very amusing, and the diaries seem to be as full as our own...

We also had a nice report from Mr Chris Williams, thanking us for the sponsorship regarding his half marathon.

The chairman and her son, Simon Richardson, were going to Swansea to present a cheque for £110 to the Air Ambulance in recognition for their help when Simon was involved in a serious road accident.

Guest speaker Mr Brian Haberfield was then introduced and gave an insight into the beauties of Wales, which really was spellbinding.

Our chairman was laying a wreath on our behalf at the Remembrance service.

The next date in our diary will be the Christmas fayre at the Fairways Hotel on November 18, at 10.30am.

There will be stalls and a raffle and, we hope, a fine day.

Our next monthly meeting will be in All St Church hall, which will be our Christmas party, and we will be entertained by Sounds Familiar.

Caerau death: police appeal

POLICE investigating the sudden death of a 55-year-old woman in Caerau, are trying to trace anyone who saw her prior to her death.

Diane Sparey (nee Mabley) was found dead in the rear garden of her home in Rathbone Terrace, at around 11am on Saturday, November 12.

Her death is not being treated as suspicious and is being investigated on behalf of HM Coroner.

Acting Detective Inspector Gareth Morgan of Bridgend CID said: "Mrs Sparey was a well known character in the Caerau area."

"Anyone who saw her between 9am on Friday, November 11 and 11am on Saturday, November 12, should contact Bridgend CID."

"Mrs Sparey would have been wearing a yellow polo shirt and navy blue shell suit bottoms, with white trainers."

Anyone with information should contact Bridgend CID via 101, or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

'REMEMBER BOROUGH'S CHILDREN IN NEED' – council urges

AS local residents join the rest of the country in raising money for this year's BBC Children in Need Appeal, Bridgend County Borough Council asks them to also remember the area's own children in need.

With the number of looked after children in care nationally still rising steadily and a 13 per cent increase recorded in BBC over the last year, the need for more foster carers has never been greater, a spokesperson explained.

"There are currently 45,000 foster families in the UK caring for just over 83,000 children and young people. The Fostering Network estimates that a further 10,000 carers are needed nationally, including 750 carers in Wales.

"Faced with a shortage of foster carers in Bridgend, it is essential that fostering is promoted throughout the county borough to attract people with the qualities and skills to foster, particularly for teenagers and siblings."

The shortage of foster carers means that quite often children are moved from home to home, separated from their brothers and sisters and have to live a long way from their family and friends.

The more people who are approved as foster carers, the more likely it is that a good match can be found for the child in terms of location, culture, lifestyle, language and interests, reducing instability and disruption.

Coun Alana Davies, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "In Bridgend, we have many looked-after children in need of a foster carer who is able to offer them a safe, caring and supportive home."

"So many children are unable to remain with their birth family for many reasons, and fostering is one of the best ways of giving them a new or better life, whether that is short-term support or a long-term care."

There are many misconceptions that foster carers have to be married, own their own home or be a certain age.

However, there is no 'ideal' type and the council needs carers from a variety of different backgrounds and life experiences to meet the needs of the children.

For more information about fostering in Bridgend, call the team on 01656 642349 (Monday to Friday) or email: fostering@bridgend.gov.uk.

He was said to have previous convictions for two armed robberies, for which he was jailed for seven and nine years respectively for burglary and possessing drugs.

Mr Gedge said: "Nevell was in the '90s at the tail-end of his criminal career. He has totally turned around his life, after spending a considerable period in prison."

"He describes his behaviour as that of an idiot. He cannot explain his dangerous driving and it is more through luck than judgement there were no collisions or injuries."

He said the possession of the amphetamines was a symptom of the life he was then leading.

He added: "Through his own efforts, he has rebuilt his life, and is well-known and well-liked. His criminal attitudes are in the past, and behind him."

Nevell was also disqualified from driving for one year.

ROYAL BRITISH LEGION PORTHCAWL BRANCH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Following his address, the president of the Porthcawl branch of the Royal British Legion, Lt Col Stephen Rock, TD, receiving an applause from the chairman, Ruth Birch; John Berry, temporary secretary; Ray Street, Standard Bearer and secretary, and the Mayor of Porthcawl, Coun. Barbara Stubbs.

IN her second year in office as chairman, Ruth Birch gave her address – in which commented on yet another successful year for the Porthcawl branch of the Royal British Legion.

She complimented and thanked everyone for their part in helping to achieve the success of the 2010-2011 Poppy Appeal, which had raised £14,142.56 – a record for the town.

Ruth invited the Mayor of Porthcawl, Coun Barbara Stubbs, and Wendy David, Poppy Appeal organiser, to come forward and make an award of a certificate and badge to Legionnaire Neville Evans who had been selling Poppies in John Street, Porthcawl, for 27 years.

The president of the Porthcawl branch, Lt Col Stephen Rock, TD, who was completing his first year in the post, inaugurated Legionnaire Ray Street as the branch's official Standard Bearer.

Ray was also elected as branch secretary.

The president thanked Legionnaire John Berry for 'stepping-into-the-breach' and acting as temporary secretary over the last 18 months until a permanent secretary could be appointed.

Ogmore AM unveils plaque to the Fallen

OGMORE'S Labour AM, Janice Gregory, has unveiled a memorial plaque with the names and locations of the 24 war graves at Pontcymmer cemetery.

Designed by Mr 'Dixie' Dean and amended and produced by Mr Peter Cole and Bridgend Plastics it was erected by Stacey Alymore and Martin Llewellyn, at the request of the Garw Valley branch of the Royal British Legion, at the entrance to the site on Alexandra Road, Pontcymmer.

The AM said: "It is an immense honour to unveil this plaque, so that there will be an easy way to identify the War graves. It is a very fitting tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our county and are buried at this cemetery."

Mr Dean, branch secretary of the Garw Valley branch of the Royal British Legion, added: "Every year after the Remembrance Day Service we place poppy crosses on all the individual war graves – but some of them have become hard to identify."

"It was decided that a plaque with all the names and locations of the war graves on would be a mark of respect to these brave servicemen buried here," he explained.

Traffic-free route through Llynfi Valley is opened

A NEW three-mile walking and cycling route through the Llynfi Valley was opened last week by the Sustrans charity and Bridgend County Borough Council.

Transport Minister Carl Sargeant, AM, officially opened the first phase of the traffic-free Llynfi Valley community route between Maesteg and Caerau.

It will provide a link for school pupils to make the school journey more safely on foot or bike, and give better walking and cycling access to Maesteg.

Mr Sargeant said: "This new route is an excellent example of how partnership working between Sustrans, Bridgend County Borough Council and Welsh Government can contribute to developing safe walking and cycling routes in our communities."

"We are fully committed to enhancing and advancing the development of walking and cycling routes across Wales and provide people with realistic and enjoyable alternatives to the car.

"This new cycle route reflects our commitment and provides local residents with a safe route to partake in healthy exercise to help improve their health, enjoy the natural environment and promote a greener way of life."

Lee Waters, Sustrans Cymru Director, said: "The new route gives people more choice about how they make their everyday journeys."

"It's an entirely traffic-free route, making it a safer and more enjoyable walking and cycling experience, which will be especially beneficial to school pupils."

Sustrans has been working with Caerau Primary pupils since the start of the school year to enable them to be more active by making their daily school journey by bike.

A series of stone artworks, commissioned by Bridgend County Borough Council, in partnership with Sustrans and Literature Wales, have also been unveiled along the route.

The stones – local Ewenny Limestone – have been carved by artist Adam Williamson with the poems of local children.

Bridgend CBC Deputy Leader David Sage said: "As well as providing a direct link to Maesteg Comprehensive School, the Llynfi Valley Community Route is going to benefit local people by offering a convenient, safe and enjoyable way of gaining access to education and employment opportunities."

Brackla Rainbows bring hope for needy in Africa

THE 1st Brackla Rainbows recently ran their socks off – to raise money for the Disasters Emergency Committee (DEC) East Africa Crisis Appeal.

Nine Rainbows (the youngest members of Girlguiding UK) ran a total of 1438 lengths of their meeting hall on November 8 to help raise funds for those going hungry in Africa. That works out at over 10 miles between them in 25 minutes! An amazing total, considering they are only aged 6 and 7.

Barny, Unit Leader, said that sponsor money is rolling in and hopes that the end total will be as impressive as the girls' efforts. "The Rainbows were little superstars – they were all really determined and made all the leaders very proud. I'd like to say a huge well done to Carys, Catherine,

Lauren, Lilly, Maddy, Madeleine, Miranda, Nia and Olivia."

The DEC East Africa Appeal is helping more than 13 million people in Ethiopia, Kenya, Somalia, and the newly-formed Republic of South Sudan, who have been left in need of food, water and emergency healthcare because of one of the worst droughts in 60 years.

For more information, or to donate, go to www.dec.org.uk or telephone 0370 60 60 900.

LOCAL YOUNG PEOPLE HEAR THE SOUND OF SUPPORT IN BRIDGEND

YOUNG people recently enjoyed a feast of live rock music with Sound? 2011 at Bridgend Recreation Centre featuring headlineers Exit International and many more local bands in celebration of World Mental Health Day.

For 14-25 year olds and organised by PROMHS (consisting of local organisations working in Bridgend) and Siaradwn Ni – Let's Talk (five-year Big Lottery project), the night successfully aimed to promote positive mental health wellbeing amongst young people through the innovative medium of rock music, breaking down the barriers to accessing support, recognition, response and recovery.

Headliners Exit International from Cardiff and Bridgend-based bands Colours of One, Where is Billy, Four Words Later and Station 13 rocked the night away with unforgettable indie rock, unique instrumentation and pounding beats.

Throughout the concert, there were projections of slogans and mock-up boards to write what the audience thought of mental health which also included help numbers for various organisations dedicated to young people.

During band changes, short films were shown made by 17-year-old Bridgend College student, Sophie Williams, highlighting young people's successes in overcoming personal issues.

Sophie said: "The films started in silhouette of a young person telling their own story, gradually panning out to a full frontal shot as the person related how out of personal struggle there can be a positive ending.

"Young people facing troubled times will listen to other young people who have faced similar experiences. The message throughout the films was that you are not alone and there is lots of help out there. "There is always someone you can talk to and you are never alone. At the end of the films were information contact numbers."

Members of the audience included Lucy Domacheski who said: "The bands were awesome and there was a good atmosphere in the gig. The messages on screen were powerful"; and Rachel Roberts who said: "Everyone was really friendly which made for a good atmosphere. All the bands were great!"

Supported by Bridgend County Borough Council's The Gathering, Bridgend College and Black River Arts, everyone enjoyed this unique event, using music to encourage young people to think about mental health and what information and help was available to them.

OPENCAST SITE: AM presses Council

REGIONAL AM Byron Davies has again written to both Bridgend County Borough Council and Neath Port Talbot Council to ask what action they have taken to deal with problems at the old opencast site in Kenfig Hill.

Mr Davies, Welsh Conservative regional AM for South Wales West, said he was told that a meeting was being convened on site between the two councils to look at safety matters relating to the former Celtic Energy opencast site known initially as Park Slip and later as Margam.

He said: "BCBC told me in a letter sent last July that they were attempting to meet their counterparts in NPT. I have now written back to ask if that meeting has taken place. If so, what is the outcome and if not, why not?"

"It surely does not take four months to organise a site meeting and I would hope that things are already moving forward. I know that Pyle community councillors have taken this up because of a lack of security on the site.

"There is a very deep void there which is filling with water and which presents a substantial danger especially to children.

"As a former police officer, I am only too aware of the risks we have here on the doorstep of communities in Cefn Cribwr, Kenfig Hill and Pyle.

"The time for action is now and I will be pressing for the Health and Safety Executive and the Coal Authority to get involved as well and help sort out this problem."

Job satisfaction
BCBC home care workers Sam Pilkington from Bridgend, Tina Jones and Sue Wolsey believe more people should consider home care as a career – because of the amazing job satisfaction gained from helping their clients.

All came from very different jobs to join the council's home care team.

Sue, from Bryntirion, had a smallholding and worked in a garage before joining seven years ago; Tina, from Brynceithin, also joined seven years ago was a manager in a supermarket, and Sam left her job in a nursing home to start at BCBC two and a half years ago.

Although they each work in different areas of home care, they all agree that their jobs are hugely rewarding.

Sam is part of BCBC's BridgeStart team which provides a short-term enabling service for people of all ages who are leaving hospital. Sam said: "It's very satisfying to have a job which helps keep people in their own homes. My BridgeStart role means I have a particularly quick turnover of clients as the whole point is to try and get them to live as independently within six weeks."

"I can work with clients in their 20s and their 90s, so every day and every call is different. I hear a lot of people say 'I could never do that job' but there's a lot of training and ongoing support and it's a very rewarding career."

Tina works on the home care team in Bridgend town centre, helping mainly older people to remain independent in their own homes by providing personal care and support.

She said: "To be a good home care worker, you have to like meeting different people, be a good listener, and be able to build up a good rapport with clients. Sometimes you will be the only person your client sees each day."

"I think our service does improve people's quality of life and it's brilliant in the way it helps people stay in their own homes for longer. I would like to see more men joining the service and it's a job suitable for all ages as long as you are mature in your outlook."

Sue works on the EMI home care team, which supports people with dementia within their own homes.

She said: "When you can see the progress you have made with someone you visit the sense of achievement."

"Working in the EMI team is special because you have to sometimes think for the person who has dementia and really gain their trust. It's about taking it a step at a time."

"This is a career worth having and there's a great team spirit. I love my job."

2012 flooring

The Flooring Company that comes to you!

IN THESE TROUBLED economic times, it is good to report that companies can still launch a new service and prosper.

2012 Flooring was set up by Chris Wall and his colleagues, using their product knowledge to create a business that was closely matched to the needs of customers.

Chris said "It has been a great year, and we feel we have made a real contribution to the local economy by employing local people and using local sub-contractors.

"The crucial thing, however, is the business has prospered through our ability to give people a better price than our rivals - combined with greater customer service." 2012 Flooring offers free estimates, free delivery and will uplift a customer's old carpet. We will also move any furniture that needs to be moved, and fit the cupboards. The company has also added more storage space, so that a carpet can be in stock and ready, depending on when the customer wants it fitted.

The company is proud of its website, which is informative and really helps customers make a decision. Chris added: "Once they have settled on a number of options, we will call around with a range of samples. We stock a full range of floorings, carpets to wood, and from laminates to vinyl. In fact, we are a green way of shopping, because the customer won't waste fuel driving from shop to shop. What is more, all our wood flooring is from sustainable sources."

Chris and his colleagues chose the name '2012 Flooring' because London 2012 was generating great excitement. Now, their company is moving rapidly towards 2012, and is playing a full part in the economic life of the area.

November news from the Fonmon Apiary

by HAROLD WILLIAMS

IT has been a busy enough year so far, and contrary to all of the literature written on the craft of beekeeping, it is not over yet.

To all intents and purposes, the bees should have settled into their winter clusters – but this is not happening at all, far from it – the current mild weather is seeing the bees as busy as they have ever been.

What does it advise in the literature? Well, it advises you that the bee-keeping year begins in the autumn, and it is at this time of the year you should be thinking of treating the bees for Varroa Mites, as any bees emerging now will be the ones to take the colony through the winter.

Of course, as they emerge from their cells, they will be accompanied by the mites that carried out their breeding cycle in the same sealed cell as the newly-emerged bee.

Your treatment will help to reduce the number of mites that will go through the winter with the bees. It also advises that you remove any supers that you wish to keep containing honey, as you may contaminate the contents with any substances that are used to treat for Varroa – and as some treatments are chemically based, this is sound advice.

As of yet, there is no all year round treatment available to treat for Varroa.

The next step, is to ensure that the bees have enough stores to see them through the winter period; the recommended amount is in the region of 40lb per hive.

If honey has been taken off, then feeding sugar-syrup (white sugar mixed with water) to make up the shortfall must be done, all this has to be done while the temperatures are still high enough to allow the bees to process the syrup to a consistency that suits them and also to allow them time to make wax and seal over the cells into which they put the syrup.

In some years, this has been sound advice and it has worked very well; however, this year as stated it is a little different, temperatures are up and the bees are very active, many of the so called winter bees will have died by now and been replaced by our still laying queens, all the active bees need food to convert into energy to allow the colony to perform and of course any syrup fed to the bees will no doubt be being consumed to provide this energy demand.

You will have to keep on feeding, so as to ensure stores are there when needed. So far, I have not yet treated any hives for Varroa, as I am still feeding some colonies, it is usual to have all feeding done before applying Varroacides!

The bees can be put off accepting the syrup by the application of mite treatments. Late as it is, I still intend to treat for Varroa before the month is out.

Many more bees die of starvation than through the ravages of Varroa – hence my desire to have the bees well stored and to tackle the Varroa second.

Why a Vale man is running the London Marathon for Ty Hafan

A LLANBLETHIAN man has a special motivation for pounding local pavements and lanes as he trains for April's London Marathon.

Simon Farrington will be running the 26.2 miles for children's hospice Ty Hafan, a charity close to his heart.

Simon, aged 54, has a personal reason for supporting the Sully-based hospice as his brother and sister-in-law suffered a double tragedy of losing a four-year-old son and six-month-old daughter to cancer and leukaemia.

"It is many years ago, but I remember the intensity of them coping with it and their grief which, in reality, will ease but never end.

"The death of a child affects so many people, close family, friends, work colleagues, nursery teachers...Nobody is untouched by it and that is why I am full of admiration for the work done by Ty Hafan and similar hospices up and down the country," he said.

Simon has been awarded a gold Marathon slot by Ty Hafan, which means he is committed to raising a minimum £2,000 sponsorship.

"I must be mad – my wife says it is a midlife crisis – and I'm tending to agree with her. I hadn't run since my school days, when I was a pretty nifty cross-country runner, but I was two stones lighter!

"I know I shouldn't set myself a target time, but I did the Cardiff half marathon in one hour 45 minutes, and I want to go to London fit enough to run the distance. Anything under four hours 30 minutes would be brilliant."

Journalist Simon is calling on relatives, friends and colleagues as his first port of call for sponsorship, and is hoping that local businesses will get behind his appeal and support his massive fund-raising challenge.

He is also offering local WIs and other groups the chance to book him as a guest speaker on the media.

He has set up a just giving page at <http://www.justgiving.com/Simon-Farrington>. Alternatively, you can give him a call on 01446 775678, to book his public speaking services, or to offer sponsorship.

Simon Farrington has been awarded a gold marathon slot by Ty Hafan, and is committed to raising £2,000.

Full house for the Vale farmers' market AGM

THERE was a full house for the Vale of Glamorgan Farmers' Market AGM on November 5 at the Lesser Hall, Cowbridge.

Chairman Anders Leijerstam spoke of the many successful new initiatives that had been started during the past year, including free hamper draws, visits for the Friends of the Market to producers' farms and the new market aprons.

The Farmers' Market hamper draw at the Food & Drink Festival was won by Diana Davies, from Neath.

Taking over the chairperson's role for the next two years is Vicky Lewis, of Lewis Fine Foods, Pyle and the vice-chairman is Dave Llewellyn of Great House Farm, Penllyn.

Among the new ideas for promotion of the market was the introduction of a community stall inviting people to bring along surplus garden produce with the proceeds going to charity.

A feature producer stall, giving additional space for a stallholder to feature their produce is to be introduced at Cowbridge Farmers' Market on November 19, when Venison from the Vale will highlight their deer park.

Did you know we have a historic deer park in the Vale of Glamorgan that dates from the 1640s? Still in its original form, Llantrithyd Deer Park runs a herd of Red and Fallow deer to provide Prime Organic Venison that is 100% natural, 100% organic and 100% traceable.

There is the opportunity to learn more about the fantastic health giving benefits of venison by visiting Venison from the Vale's Feature stall at Cowbridge Farmers' Market this Saturday, November 19.

You can learn the story of the park, enjoy free tasters, recipes and cooking advice. On sale will be delicious organic steaks, loin medallions, haunch joints, diced and minced venison, sausages and burgers, as well as a variety of antler products.

There will also be voucher promotions and a free Christmas hamper draw at Cowbridge and Penarth markets before Christmas and many other new initiatives for the coming year are to be considered.

Special thanks went to Sheena Sergeant and Molly Ranger of Cowbridge Country Markets for the delicious lunch of soup and cake that they provided for stallholders.

High on style, low on substance... IMMORTALS FAILS TO LIVE LONG IN THE MEMORY!

If the success of last year's Clash Of The Titans proved anything (apart from that post-converting films from 2D to 3D is a terrible, terrible decision) it was that audiences were more than up for a little bit of gods and titans smacking the seven bells out of each other.

With a Titans sequel heading our way next year, appetites will no doubt be sated by Immortals. It tells the tale of King Hyperion (Mickey Rourke), a man who is intent on freeing trapped titans and unleashing them on the gods so that he can take control of the world; however Zeus (Luke Evans) has other ideas, and chooses Theseus (Henry Cavill) to lead the fightback against Hyperion and stop his dastardly plans...

If there was one thing guaranteed about

Immortals from the get-go, it was that it was going to be visually outstanding. With Tarsem Singh in the director's chair, a mundane visual outing was the last thing that would be popping up on the big screen.

After all, while pilloried critically, his debut outing, The Cell, was an intriguing piece of work, while the arresting The Fall in 2006 showed just how gifted a visual director he was with a beautiful piece of film-making.

Sadly, such inspiration appears to have been in short supply here, as Immortals is a laden, dull as dishwater piece of work that while easy on the eye, blunders the brain into submission long before its overlong and drawn-out conclusion - in short, it's a film that certainly won't live long in the memory.

Anybody who found Clash Of The Titans to be as exciting as watching paint slowly dry, would be best served avoiding the cinema and settling down for a nice pint in a quaint pub, as Immortals simply takes the Clash of the Titans story and rejigs it for its own ends.

But it isn't just lazy storytelling that screenwriters Charley and Vlas Parlapanides are guilty of; they can also be tried on counts of failure to create anything other than cardboard cut-out characters - dialogue so wooden, you could carve a rocking chair out of it - and a distinct lack of invention.

While the concept of gods fighting titans is something of a thrilling one, it is reduced to a boring concept by the writers, neither of whom bring anything meaningful or worthwhile to the proceedings.

The malaise stretches to the performances with the cast having the misfortune of bringing the Parlapanides' script to life and attempting to do something good with it. So you have bright young thing Henry Cavill gamely trying his best with a character straight from the clichéd book of leading man stereotypes, right down to a gamely-delivered 'rousing' speech that has all the impact of a pillow on steel. That Cavill will be bringing Superman to life isn't too concerning - he has a degree of charm and ability that a better script would make better use of, but here he is fighting a losing battle.

Mickey Rourke appears to be enjoying the chance to earn money just by showing up; his evil king again cut from the clichéd cloth that bore Theseus. He seems unconcerned about creating an indelible character, his performance smacking of the utmost laziness.

Underneath them, the likes of Freida Pinto, Stephen Dorff, Luke Evans and John Hurt all test the credulity of their equity cards with weak to poor performances, meaning that a fairly decent cast are undone by turns that aren't particularly good and fail to overcome the shortcomings of the writing.

The only light at the end of this rather dark tunnel lies in the direction of Singh, who even though seeming to have an off-day, offers enough stylised visuals to distract from the dross elsewhere.

Using a (fairly) seamless blend of set and CGI, along with enough slow-motion to make even Zack Snyder jealous, the film maintains a visual interest even when all around it is crumbling; had Singh been able to marshal a better script, then Immortals would certainly be a worthy piece of work that, like the best films, balances what you see on screen with a compelling narrative.

However, like much of Hollywood's blockbuster output, Immortals has plenty of style and very little substance and though the hard-hitting action and style covers some cracks, it is unable to shore up what is a very poor piece of work indeed.

VERDICT - Visually impressive, Immortals certainly looks the part - but dig a little deeper and no amount of clever direction from Tarsem Singh can overcome the woeful script and weak turns. Its fantasy grounding and visceral violence may draw certain people in, but those who prefer to be entertained mentally, as well as visually, should keep away. Poor. SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: 300 (2006), Clash of the Titans (2010)

A FESTIVE LOOK AT HOLTON ROAD

LOCAL BUSINESSES PREPARE FOR THE CHRISTMAS BONANZA

HOLTON ROAD'S businesses continue to prosper and are prepared for a Christmas bonanza.

In 2008, there was a credit crunch and a number of businesses closed, only to be replaced by companies offering something new in the retail market.

Since that time, The GEM has spoken to business owners in Holton Road, Regent Street and Thompson Street, and many have been perplexed by tales of doom and gloom, and have reported resilient trade.

There is a definite danger in talking things down, but to balance things up, perhaps we need to look at the positives, and the reasons that businesses thrive.

PETS 'R' US, on Regent Street, remains as busy as ever. Steve Lane, the owner, explained that part of the reason for the shop's success was that the staff had specialist knowledge.

"We are enthusiastic, qualified in giving pet nutrition advice – and all own animals ourselves, whether it is a dog, a cat, or another kind of animal."

It is the official stockist for a number of premium dog foods, such as Royal Canin, James Wellbeloved, Burns, Proplan and Hills Science Plan, and provides a dog grooming service.

At Christmas, it is the 'go to' place for pet lovers – with a huge selection of treats, toys, and even doggy Christmas cards!

Steve also deals in exotic pets and sells tropical and coldwater fish, snakes, lizards, hamsters, and tortoises, along with the necessary food supplies.

La Cucina Coffee House is a café and eatery that provides an authentic Mediterranean atmosphere and is a stylish meeting place for people in the centre of Barry.

Again, it is a healthy business that has been on Holton Road for five years. Before that, Ferda, the owner, had another branch in High Street for four years.

Ferda emphasised: "We provide a friendly service and have always had very reasonable prices."

This is no idle boast: Cappuccinos and lattes at La Cucina start at £1.60 and £1.50; elsewhere that could be £2.60 and £2.50. Breakfasts run between £3 and £4.

Jacket meals and lunchtime specials are between £4 and £5, and the choice is huge home-made lasagne, chilli con carne, spaghetti bolognese, meat balls, and much more – it's your choice.

For afters, the patisserie would test the resolve of a saint!

The service is always swift, a bonus for those with half an hour to spare, and Ferda and the team complement the relaxed atmosphere.

The coffee house is open from Monday to Saturday, 8.30am to 5pm.

Just a few yards away at 46 Holton Road is Tan-y-Hyde, which offers the perfect antidote for women suffering in the hectic run-up to Christmas.

Relax, pamper yourself and enjoy!

The beauty salon is owned by sisters, Joanna Spear and Tracy Kemp, who understand exactly what women want in the festive period – some serious help in preparing for the party season and an indulgent escape from the cares of the world!

Tracy explained: "We do waxing, facials, a range of massages for men and women, make-up sessions, tanning, lashes and brows, and nail treatments."

Tan y Hyde does the exotic Minx nails which are glitzy and colourful designs.

It is also running a wants to publicise an event at Barry Island Sports and Social Club on December 16, to raise funds for Harvey Hudson, the three-year-old son of young Barry mum Tara Mackie who was tragically killed in October. Donations can be made at the branch on Holton Road and tickets for the event are £5.

(Lots more businesses appear on pages 16-17).

A FESTIVE LOOK AT HOLTON ROAD

JPL - A TRUE SUCCESS!

JPL SOUND, The Barry Music Shop, is as well known throughout south Wales as it is in its home town.

Situated at the top end of Holton Road, it provides expert advice on all things musical, but John Lewis and his staff also travel far and wide, providing stages, sound systems and lighting for dozens of events.

John explained: "We've done the Barry Firework Fiesta for 37 years, and this year, it was great to have a record turn-out."

"The crowds were huge and ready half an hour before the start of the fireworks."

Not only did JPL Sound supply the sound, John doubled up to provide the commentary, as well!

But that is just one of the many events that the staff cover.

"We did the Armistice Day event at the Civic Offices, and on Sunday, Barry's Remembrance Day events, both out doors and in doors."

In fact, Remembrance Day demonstrates JPL

John and Sam offer expert advice on all things musical at JPL Sound.

Sound's commitment to serving the south Wales community, because John and his staff also provide sound systems for Cowbridge, Dinas Powys, Penarth and for four locations in Blaenau Gwent.

The company also supports the Vale Show, the Bridgend Show, the Usk Show, the GB Rally, the Cardiff Half Marathon, and goes to the west country for the Weston Beach Race, a motocross endurance event.

At this time of the year, John and his assistant, Sam Osborne, provide helpful advice to people wanting to buy instruments like guitars as Christmas presents.

"We will take a guitar out of the box and make sure it is working properly and that people have the right leads and accessories."

because they have a problem with their product. It means the customer ends up paying for the product and the repair, whereas if they'd bought with JPL in the first place, the warranty would cover the cost of repair.

John emphasised that when people buy on-line, they can't see the product – and that it is simpler to take an hour out of their day to pop into the shop to see exactly what they are purchasing and that it is the right thing for them.

It means Christmas Day is more likely to go smoothly than end up in frustration!

Businesses see what the Eisteddfod has to offer!
WITH little more than eight months to go before the National Eisteddfod is held at Llandow, from August 4-11, 2012, the festival and the Vale Council have organised an event for local businesses and companies to find out more about the services and products the Eisteddfod will require over the next few months.

Eisteddfod Chief Executive, Elfed Roberts, says, "We will be looking for a wide range of services and products as the Eisteddfod approaches, especially as work progresses on the site itself. "We are always keen to hear from local companies who can offer these services for a competitive price."

"The aim of the 'Meet the Buyer' event, held on November 29, is to give local businesses an opportunity to find out more about our needs and for us to see what services and goods are available locally."

"Naturally, the Eisteddfod has to look for the most competitive prices, and an event like this is a great chance to talk and for the local business sector to find out what work will be available."

"Details of all the services we will need are available in the business section on the Eisteddfod website. We are also publishing details of opportunities to quote for work in this section."

"We are grateful to the Vale Council for their help and support in organising this event, and hope that many businesses from the local area will be keen to work with us over the next few months."

"Over the past few years, independent research has shown that the local area benefits £6-£8 million from the Eisteddfod's visit. Part of this money goes to the tourism and leisure, and we also spend a significant amount on services and goods locally."

"If you and your business would like to know more, please register to join us in Barry at the end of the month."

The Meet the Buyer session is held at Barry Memorial Hall at 2pm

The Eisteddfod and The Cultural Olympiad
SOME exciting news reached the Eisteddfod Office this week, when two of Wales's prominent arts organisations announced that their projects for the Cultural Olympiad will be coming to the Eisteddfod site in Llandow.

Theatr Genedlaethol Cymru revealed that they have been chosen to participate in the World Shakespeare festival, produced by the Royal Shakespeare Company for the London 2012 Festival - the official culture programme of the Olympic Games.

'Y Storm', a Welsh language translation of William Shakespeare's 'The Tempest', will be performed in association with the National Eisteddfod on the Eisteddfod 'maes' (site) next August.

In a new Welsh language translation by former National Poet of Wales, Gwyneth Lewis and with live music, circus and magic, Theatr Genedlaethol Cymru (the Welsh language-National Theatre) will bring to life this daring and remarkable classic, regarded as Shakespeare's most ambitious play. The creative team will include Elen Bowman (Deffro'r Gwanwyn, The Devil Inside Him), Composer Simon Allen (Royal National Theatre) and movement director and choreographer Liz Ranken (Royal Shakespeare Company).

In addition, Arts Council Wales announced that their project 'Adain Avion' will also be visiting the Eisteddfod. Adain Avion, a DC-9 aircraft will visit four sites in Wales which includes the National Eisteddfod with the intention to hold a series of cultural events in each area within the aircraft.

These are the first events to be confirmed for next year's Eisteddfod.

More artists and performances will be confirmed to ensure that the 2012 Eisteddfod will be one to remember!

The headteacher's award went to Gareth Davies.

Congratulations also go to Dylan Phillips, Jude Abraham-Jones, Thomas Knapp, Megan Radmore, Emily Walters, Connor John, Eryn-Mae Franklin, Anwen Sleath and Kate Thomas for their excellent behaviour during lunchtimes last week and as a reward they will be joining Mr Goldsworthy for lunch.

Eco-Schools – As part of their eco-work, the school is providing recycling opportunities for household batteries, printer cartridges and mobile phones. Last Thursday, November 10, the school was inspected to see if it met the necessary eco targets.

A number of pupils have been responsible for ensuring that the school was on line to meet the targets and the good news was that they are now entitled to fly the second Green Flag.

WWF – As a result of their recent eco activities and cake sale the school has now adopted a Orang-Utan through the World Wildlife Scheme to help endangered species. They raised a sum of £230 which will go towards the cost of providing a safer environment for the endangered Orang-Utans.

Junior craft ONCE again, the very successful junior craft class will be run by Coun Paula James in the Talbot Community Centre, Prince Road, Kenfig Hill on Saturday, December 19.

It will be held for two hours between 10am and noon and admission is free. It is an opportunity for children to make personal Christmas cards and presents for family and friends.

Mrs James, who will be assisted by members of Craft Club, will be donating the materials required. Parents are welcome so long as they are accompanied by a responsible child. For further details of this fun morning, ring Paula on 01656 741160.

Precept stays GOOD news from the Pyle Community Council: It has been confirmed that for the fourth year running the council has not raised its precept, meaning that there will not be an increase on their part in the council tax for the Pyle area for the year 2011-2012.

Mynydd Infants School

HEALTHY Food Week – Last week, the school held a successful 'Healthy Food Week' when the excellent school cook, Sarah Llewellyn and her assistants Nicola Rock, Debra Evans, Sara Evens and Michaela Powell served up tasty and exciting dishes from around the world as part of the 'National School Meal Week'.

The children, while thoroughly enjoying the week, also researched a variety of countries and developed their knowledge of the world through a wide range of hands on and interactive activities.

The children would like to thank the kitchen staff for continuing to serve delicious, healthy and tasty meals.

Book fayre – A book fayre was held in the school last week by Schoolastic Books who also gave the children a story telling session. Their mascot 'Clifford', the big red dog, also made a surprise appearance.

Children in Need – Tomorrow, Friday, November 18, pupils can go to school dressed up in 'Spots', they can be spotty clothes, spotty hair or anything spotty. There are a few badges left at 25p, but they would also like a donation if possible towards this very good cause.

Presentation – On Monday, November 21, there will be a presentation assembly for last year's class six (they are in the juniors now) who won joint first prize in SACRE. All parents are welcome.

Father Christmas – On Wednesday, November 22, Father Christmas photographs will be taken. Also on Wednesday, there will be a Building Blocks Performance for Children in Reception to year-2. There is no charge to children for this show as it is being paid for by the school fund.

Kenfig Hill FOOD Bank – If anyone would like to donate food for those people who are in need of help from Social Services and hold vouchers from them, please take your donations of non-perishable food and put it in the basket at the back of the church.

However, for the rest of this month could you please bias any donations towards babies.

The Advent Parish Sunday Lunch is being held in the Grove Golf Club on Sunday, November 27. Anyone wishing to go should leave their name on the list by November 21.

Wellbeing Centre

THE activities being held by the Mental Health Matters, Wales on Wednesday, November 23 in the Talbot Community Centre, Prince Road include a talk on fuel poverty given by Carol from 1pm-2pm and reading with John from 3pm-4pm.

There is also a great social afternoon from 1pm-5pm when everyone is welcome to go and enjoy a relaxed afternoon in a friendly environment with a cup of coffee, or join in the various activities that are provided.

Parish of Pyle & Kenfig

THE Christmas fayre will take place in the Church Hall on Friday, November 25 from 5.30pm.

It will be full of festive stalls and rumour has it that a certain 'Father Christmas' will be finding time in his busy schedule to call in.

Parish Calendar – The calendar is now available at just £4 each. They make great Christmas presents, so why not call in and buy one.

Bible Lands – Well done to Katherine, Julie and all those who supported for raising in excess of £900 for Bible Lands this year.

Movietime – Everyone is welcome to a showing of an older film in St James' Church Hall this afternoon at 2pm.

Pisgah Chapel

THE Pisgah Ladies Fellowship – would like to announce that due to the lack of interest their Christmas shopping trip to Bristol has been cancelled.

However, the coffee evening to be held on Thursday, November 24 at 7pm when the new kitchen will be dedicated and officially opened will go ahead as scheduled. Admission is free and all are welcome to join them.

For all information regarding the events being held by the Ladies Fellowship, ring either Rhian on 744722 or Karen on 740684.

Neighbourhood Watch

HALLOWEEN Anti-Social behaviour – Although there were concerns by the community about loutish behaviour on Halloween night, a strong police presence kept it to a minimum.

In total, there were nine reports of anti-social behaviour on the night, in the Pyle, Kenfig Hill and Cefn Cribwr areas.

The neighbourhood Policing Team reported that the most common complaint was against groups of youths throwing objects such as eggs at houses, but there were no confirmed reports of any damage.

However, three ASBO referrals have been submitted against persons who were found to have been involved.

Prowlers – Pyle NPT have received two reports regarding a late night prowler in the rear gardens in Pyle and Kenfig Hill. A few sheds have been broken into, resulting in a few low value items being stolen. The Police Team would like to remind all residents to make sure that all windows and doors are locked securely at night and also secure all valuable property.

If you have any issues you would like to discuss in strict confidence, you can ring Sgt Jenkins on 07584 004254, Jon on 07805 301491 or Nerys on 07805 301493.

Upset in Kenfig as Remembrance service ends early

AFTER last year's controversy, harmony returned to the community of Kenfig Hill for the Remembrance Service in St Theodore's Church and for the parade down to the memorial for the service there.

It was one of the biggest gatherings seen at the monument for many years and with the weather being kind once again, it was good to see local churches side-by-side and all the local organisations present, including those who stayed away last year. It was also good to see our local vicars, Revd Jonathan Durley and Revd Len Grabham once again conducting the service together at the monument.

However, it all ended on a slightly sour note, when the service concluded a little early and the proceedings were taken over by a representative of the Royal British Legion.

Instead of asking the Reverends to fill in for a few minutes, or even waiting, the dignity of the occasion was spoiled when due to his inexperience, he carried on immediately and called for the two minutes silence to be observed at 10.50am, instead of the traditional 11am.

Unfortunately, this caused a great deal of upset among the veterans, widows and families, especially those who missed what is most important to them – the laying of the wreaths and the two minutes silence, when they can reflect on their loved ones.

LLANTWIT MAJOR PREPARES FOR A MERRY LITTLE CHRISTMAS!

by PHILIP IRWIN

THE town of Llantwit Major is, once again, making preparations for the festive season, and traders and civic leaders are urging the public to protect the future of the town by supporting local enterprises.

The secretary of the Llantwit Major Chamber of Trade, Janet Moisan, told The GEM that it had been a "mixed year", but that work which had taken place in the town was now bearing fruit.

The Boverton Road regeneration project was now complete, and she said that this would be shown off to its best advantage when the traditional switching-on of the Christmas lights takes place, on December 3.

She said: "We are planning to include all the popular features of the day, with a lantern parade for the children as a centrepiece." It is intended to use the Llantwit Hall as a 'workshop' - so that young people can come along during the day, make their own lantern, and then join the evening procession.

There will also be stalls and musical entertainment at the Precinct.

She said: "The switching-on of the lights is due to take place at around 6pm, and this year, the lights will be switched on by two local beauty pageant queens."

Kate-Alicia Morgan teaches in Llantwit Major Comprehensive School, and recently won the crown and title of 'Europe's Perfect Woman' at a pageant in the Grand Pavilion, Porthcawl.

In a double success for the Vale, Jeyanne Wiltshire of Barry also took the title of 'Europe's Perfect Teen' - and Kate-Alicia and Jeyanne will be making a joint appearance in their finery to switch on the lights.

Janet Moisan told The GEM that next year was an exciting year for the town, and traders felt that Llantwit, now that the town improvements were complete, was in a strong position to take advantage.

She said: "We are very conscious that the Welsh National Eisteddfod will be coming to Llandow in August 2012, and we see this as a great opportunity to let visitors find out more about Llantwit, and to see the town at its best."

She emphasised: "There should be a considerable 'knock-on' effect."

"It may not necessarily mean more cash being spent in the town at the time of the Eisteddfod, but it will really raise the profile of the area."

She said that bodies, such as the chamber of trade and the town council, had a long-term aim of working together to make Llantwit Major really special, and that all the recent work was helping to make this happen.

Certainly, Filco has backed its confidence in the town with hard cash, and the recently-opened Toy Plaza is emphatic evidence of that.

At a time of year, when shopping can be a stressful experience, the combination of free parking and a relaxed atmosphere is a really strong argument for checking out your local traders first - rather than joining the frenetic scramble in the city centre or retail park.

Llantwit's strength is that it still retains so many of the features of a rural market town, with traders who own their own business and who give personal service to customers.

At this time of year, many of the businesses are able to provide what the festive customer needs, with a bookshop, sweet shops, pharmacies, jewellery, florists and gift shops - all with stock that can make Christmas extra special.

New butcher gets a Llantwit Major welcome

ABOVE: Eric Smith has been pleased to receive a warm welcome to Llantwit - in the form of a healthy Christmas order book.

A SHORT while ago, The GEM wrote about the retirement of Llantwit Major's local butcher, Alan Young.

During the interview, Mr Young revealed that he had feared that the shop would close, until at the last minute, a fellow master butcher stepped in to take it over.

So, with Christmas in mind, The GEM called in to see how the new man, Eric Smith, was settling in.

The shop was looking very much the same - Eric has no plans to change it - with a display of pheasants hanging outside.

He said: "It has been a great start and it is great to be able to point to the meat we stock, and say that it is all local."

"People have been very welcoming, and I have already had orders for 50 turkeys, as well as ducks, hams and other Christmas treats!"

Double dose of perfection for Llantwit Major's festive lights switch-on!

A MEMBER of staff at Llantwit Major Comprehensive School, will be switching on the Christmas lights in the town this year – her first appearance after winning the title of Europe's Perfect Woman.

Kate-Alicia Morgan, who lives in Barry, won that accolade in a recent pageant event in Porthcawl's Grand Pavilion.

The event, very much inspired by the pageant scene in the USA, was backed by an American company and Kate-Alicia will now get the chance to go out to Florida and compete in the world final next year.

Kate-Alicia told The GEM: "There were two contests on the night – Europe's Perfect Teen and Europe's Perfect Woman – and Barry girls won both!"

The winner of the perfect teen section was Jeyanne Wiltshire, and she and Kate-Alicia will be attending events together during their year in office.

The switching-on of the lights in Llantwit will be their first joint venture.

She said: "There were three rounds during the pageant – a 'denim' round, which was casual, a 'wow' round where we had to wear something with the wow factor, and an evening ball gown round."

Kate-Alicia has been working at Llantwit Major Comprehensive School for two-and-a-half years, and is a cover supervisor, working with pupils from years 7 to 11.

She went to Bryn Hafren School in Barry, and after leaving, worked as a fashion manager, before deciding that she wanted to work with children.

She said: "I really enjoyed the pageant, and Jeyanne and I are looking forward to appearing at Llantwit major on December 3"

Volunteers remember those who are in need at Christmas

ABOVE: Volunteers Rosemarie Flanagan and Helen Roberts are hoping that Christmas at New Hope will raise plenty of cash for good causes.

WITH Christmas approaching, it is always important to remember those less well off, and all the volunteers at New Hope in Llantwit Major have this very much in mind.

Over the years, the charitable enterprise has raised money to fund a large number of projects in Nicaragua – all designed to help people there to become more self-sufficient.

Much of their funding comes from their Llantwit Major shop, and Gordon Taylor of New Hope was quick to pay tribute to his volunteers.

He said: "The volunteers here do a lot for the community. As well as serving in the shop, some were out last Remembrance Sunday, in the town hall, preparing tea and coffee for people who had attended the parade and service at the Cenotaph."

He was full of praise, also, for all the volunteers who help make the shop such a welcoming and well-presented enterprise.

He said: "We have people of all ages helping us here, and they do a great job. Some are not in the best of health, but everyone does their very best!"

He added that New Hope was currently in discussions about extending the services it offers, and he was hopeful of making an announcement in the New Year.

PORTHCAWL COMMUNITY GATHERS TO PAY SOLEMN TRIBUTE AT THE CENOTAPH

THE people of Porthcawl gathered on Remembrance Sunday, November 13 to honour the sacrifice that Servicemen and women have made in both past and current conflicts.

As you can see from Frank Shipton's evocative images, young and old both played important roles in the ceremony.

ON A BEAUTIFUL SUNLIT MORNING THE COUNTY BOROUGH HONOURS ITS HEROES

BRIDGEND county borough has a long tradition of providing Servicemen and women who serve in the Armed Forces, so Remembrance Sunday is a particularly poignant occasion.

Both Service and civilian communities paid their heartfelt tributes to the people who laid down their lives to guarantee the freedom that we enjoy.

VALE WINTER SERVICE ARRANGEMENTS

Miles Punter, Head of Visible Services at the Vale of Glamorgan Council, explains why this guide is important.

Over recent years the UK has suffered severe periods of cold weather with snow and ice causing major disruption. I wish to reassure our residents that we are prepared for such severe weather and have clear plans to help keep disruption of Council services to a minimum, using all our available resources.

Whilst no Council can guarantee the continuous delivery of its services during extreme winter weather, over recent years we have demonstrated an ability to provide our services when other councils have failed. If our services are going to be disrupted we will update you as soon as possible using our website at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk in addition to local radio, social media and our Contact Centre.

Our Civil Protection Unit will co-ordinate our work to ensure that high priority services continue to be delivered. Our staff are ready to act and, regardless of their normal day-to-day roles, this large staff resource is able to be quickly targeted towards addressing any extreme weather events. In addition to our internal resources we work with local contractors and volunteers who are able to assist specifically with snow clearance.

Whilst we will do our best, depending on the severity of the weather, there may be some limitations to our normal services. I would ask that you contact us at the time if you have any service specific queries.

Please take care and keep safe during this winter.

Miles Punter
Head of Visible Services

Councillor Geoffrey Cox, Cabinet Member for Visible and Building Services and Councillor Paul Church, Cabinet Member for Housing and Community Safety, with Council Officers.

Andrew Loosemore, Operational Manager for Highways and Engineering answers some of your questions, explaining how his department aims to keep you safe this winter:

Salting or gritting: what happens in the Vale?

We use 100% rock salt on our roads sourced from mines in Cheshire. Our salt bins can, however, contain a mixture of salt and grit or sand.

How is the decision to salt our roads made?

The decision to salt our roads is based on detailed weather forecasts from a specialist forecasting company. A decision is taken to salt the roads when the road (not air) temperature is forecast to fall below zero.

How accurate is this process?

The information is over 95% accurate.

How much salt do you stock?

We have 4,600 tonnes in stock, greatly exceeding the capacity of our salt barn (as pictured below). This is more salt than we used in total during last winter.

What roads do you salt?

We currently salt almost half of the Council's entire road network (no council applies salt to all its roads). We have a legal requirement to salt our roads and this requirement extends only to what is practical. We prioritise our treatment ensuring that major roads, industrial and commercial routes and main accesses to villages and towns are included.

Can I view the salt routes online?

Yes, enter your postcode in the 'Your Vale' section of our home page, view 'my nearest' and choose 'environment and planning' to find your nearest salt bin. Or select 'my maps' to see salting routes.

What salt spreading vehicles do you use during winter?

We have nine salting routes which each take two hours to complete. We have 10 purpose-built salt spreading vehicles available 24 hours a day and four 4x4 vehicles for use in snow and ice conditions. In addition we have snow blowers, towable salt spreaders, tractor mounted snowploughs, snow clearance equipment and pedestrian salt spreaders.

What about pavements?

We do not salt these, other than those in main shopping areas in extreme conditions. There is no law preventing you from clearing the pavements outside your home. Advice on this is detailed on the opposite page.

...in case of poor seasonal weather

What happens if the salt bin in my area needs refilling?

Please tell our Contact Centre. It will be replenished on the next scheduled round.

May I request a salt bin?

Yes. You should do this via our Contact Centre. We aim to conduct a site survey within 15 working days. Our officers will consider a range of factors in their assessment and you will be informed of their decision. Note: our supply of bins is limited and our assessment aims to ensure that they are only placed where the risk is high and many residents will benefit.

We currently have 280 salt bins for your use as a self help facility. Please remember that this salt is for roads and pavements only. It is not for use on private property. If you note any misuse of these bins you can report this to our Contact Centre.

Helpful Tips

- Always drive with caution, allocate more time for your journey or avoid going out in extreme conditions
- Carry a blanket, shovel, drink and a hazard sign in your vehicle
- Clear snow or ice early in the day
- Have ready your own salt (table or dishwasher salt is fine) to cover home paths before nightfall.
- Be neighbourly: clear snow for any elderly or disabled neighbours.

Debbie Spargo, Principal Civil Protection Officer highlights how the Council will respond if the weather should take a turn for the worst:

During extreme weather we focus and prioritise resources to cover our critical services using teams drawn from right across the Council.

Day Centres

This service may be subject to limitations; we will try to contact our clients at home and provide visiting support and advice where possible.

Home Care (Domiciliary)

Home care services provided by and funded through us will have the support of our home care team. If funded providers require our help to meet the care needs of vulnerable users we will do our best to support them.

Residential Homes

All our care homes will be fully operational, with flexible staff working arrangements to ensure residents are well looked after.

Meals on Wheels - we'll try and deliver

This is classed as a priority; we will do our best to deliver meals on wheels to our clients. If alternative arrangements have to be made we will let you, your family or your carer know.

Schools

We have introduced a new text messaging system so that schools can tell our Contact Centre whether they are 'open', 'open staff only', 'open exams only' or 'closed'. This will be placed on our website and Twitter account as soon as possible

Waste Management

Every effort will be made to collect your recycling and waste as usual. However your safety and that of our crew is paramount. We will try and let you know any changes to services or Civic Amenity Site opening times as quickly as we can. Additional staff and vehicles will work when possible.

Marriage and Civil Partnership Ceremonies

We aim to make sure our Registrars attend every event to ensure your special day goes ahead.

Registration of Births and Deaths

There may be some disruption, with opening times changing. We advise you contact the Register Office before attending. (Remember, by law a birth must be registered within 42 days).

Remembering not only those who died but also the families they left behind...

In today's GEM you will see photographs of Remembrance parades held across the county borough last weekend.

We tend to see Remembrance Day as part of a reflection of those who died during the first and Second World Wars. The larger numbers attending services, also reflect a support for those who fought and are fighting in the Balkans, Iraq, Afghanistan and Libya.

Remembrance Day must also be for those who also fought, whether in the blue light brigades of fire, police and ambulance. The Home Guard, the munitions workers, medical staff, ARP workers, land and lumber girls and the merchant seamen, more of whom died than all three military services combined.

The same is true of today's wars. We could not have fought in Libya if armaments workers had not worked 24 hour shifts to provide the munitions.

A large percentage of the medical staff serving in field hospitals are civilians or reservists. Many of the maintenance staff serving and being killed alongside our armed forces are civilians.

We owe them all a huge debt of gratitude. To mark Remembrance Day, the House of Commons devoted an afternoon to a debate about Armed Forces Personnel.

For MPs who have recently served in the Armed Forces, it was a chance to remember colleagues they had lost, while for those of us with an interest in defence and security, it was the opportunity to pay tribute to the people who put their lives on the line to protect us and highlight some of the issues they are facing.

Operation Eilamy, the UK's contribution to the operations over Libya featured highly in the debate. RAF and Navy pilots played a vital role in this and to them we owe a debt of thanks. They were admired by others for their professionalism.

Thankfully, there were no military deaths and with their brave contribution, many civilian deaths were avoided.

Against the background of operations over Libya and our continuing commitment in Afghanistan, the Government has finally enshrined the Armed Forces covenant into law. I hope that this significant step will not turn out to be an exercise full of promises that lack real commitment.

Morale amongst our Armed Forces personnel and their families is at an all-time low, due to the ongoing process of redundancies, changes to allowances and for some having to endure sub-standard accommodation. The Armed Forces Covenant will prove a stern test for how true the commitment of this and future Governments is.

As well as keeping a critical eye on what the Government is doing in relation to our Armed Forces personnel, the debate offered the chance to congratulate the Government for its decision to finally allow veterans of the Malaya and Borneo campaign to not just accept the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal, but finally to be allowed to wear it in time for Remembrance Sunday.

The medal, awarded by the Malaysian Government in 2004, fell foul of an archaic set of rules which allowed veterans to accept it, but not wear it.

This change of heart is very welcome. The honours and decorations committee is the guardian of the rules governing medals and this is now set to be reviewed. For too long, this rather shadowy and unaccountable committee has failed to respond to veterans groups, hiding behind the rules they seek to implement. Any future committee should be made accountable to Parliament. I hope Ministers will learn the lessons from the experience of the PJM veterans.

Many contributions to the debate also focused on the mental and physical impact of service. As a Member of the Defence Select Committee, we have undertaken an inquiry into military casualties and how we care for them. Charities such as Combat Stress and Help for Heroes, among many others do essential work to help serving and former Armed Forces personnel with physical injuries and mental health problems linked to their service.

After almost a decade and a half of war in the Balkans, Iraq and Afghanistan we are aware that numbers of traumatised and psychologically damaged military and ex-military personnel will grow. American studies show that 1/3rd of their Vietnam veterans needed psychological care, while one in five soldiers suffered combat induced psychological problems post Iraq.

If, as seems likely, greater emphasis is put on developing reserve forces, it is essential that there are the services to match. Research has shown that reserve forces are far more susceptible to psychological problems stemming from their service, partly because once they return to civilian life, they do not have the support network provided by a regiment or home base. Our commitment to providing care for those who have life-changing injuries or who many years down the line may suffer from psychological problems such as PTSD will have to be sustained for many years to come.

WESTMINSTER NOTEBOOK

At the same time, while the level of public awareness about these problems is, we need to be careful to avoid compassion fatigue.

At a time when despicable criminal elements are desecrating war memorials to sell the copper and bronze, we cannot ignore the fact that a few years from now the public memory of our operations in Iraq, Afghanistan and the Falklands will start to fade, funding for services must not be allowed to fade too.

Remembrance Day should honour the bravery of everyone who has fought for Britain. We should honour the skill, courage, and commitment to their comrades, country and their communities.

As a community, we must show the same devotion to looking after the families of those who serve in our name: whether it is the teacher watching for the child, upset because a parent is away; a neighbour popping in for a coffee with the family left behind; or remembering that the elderly man or woman in the street will almost certainly have served in a way that should be respected and remembered.

Maesteg U3A
THE members of the U3A would thank the speakers from Bridgend CBC Rhiannon Kinsley and Mark Harris for their excellent presentation on the regeneration of Maesteg town centre at their October meeting.

The next meeting is in Central church hall on Tuesday, November 22 at 2.30pm, and the guest speaker will be Beth Butler, vice chairperson of the Third Age Trust. Beth's talk is titled 'If it's not fun it's not the U3A'.

Young singer

THE Bridgend Young Singer competition organised by the Maesteg 'Gleemen' male voice choir and sponsored by Dunraven Windows, held auditions at Carmel, Bethania Chapel, Commercial Street, Maesteg on November 5 for the junior and senior sections of the competition.

Competitors again displayed a high standard, and adjudicators had a great deal to deliberate over before a decision was made on youngsters who will be eligible to enter the finals of the competition, which will be held in Maesteg town hall on January 28, 2012.

The junior section competitors (alphabetical listing): Lauren Coates (Bryntirion comprehensive school); Connie Osgood-Fisher (Archbishop McGrath RC Comprehensive school); Emily Hunt (Bryntirion Comprehensive school); Amy Leigh Thomas (Maesteg Comprehensive school).

Senior section: Sophie Howe (Porthcawl Comprehensive school); Harmony Miller (Porthcawl Comprehensive school); Sebastian Waters (Archbishop McGrath RC Comprehensive school).

Reserve: Megan Eleri Griffiths (Ysgol Gyfun Llanhari).

The members of the Maesteg 'Gleemen' would like to thank each accompanist, who gave up their time to support the competitors, namely Ryan Wood, Paul Greenway and Suzanne Hodges. They also express their gratitude to the Minister Reverend Alwyn Evans, the Deacons and members of the chapel for the use of the facilities.

To date the competitors aged 19-26 from September 1 who will appear in the auditions held in Maesteg town hall on November 26:

The foodbank is a store where food donated by the community is banked, and supplied to individuals, couples and families in crisis situations.

Maesteg town hall

WE recently saw the show Oliver and I took along visitors from Surrey.

The show was a great success, and they were impressed with the professionalism and the quality of the singing. Thank you, Maesteg Amateur Operatic Society, for a very enjoyable evening.

Last Saturday, I went to the Remembrance Day concert in the same venue, and we were greeted with the melodic music on the harp by teenage harpist, Sian Rushforth.

First on stage was the Briton Ferry silver band under its musical director Dr Christian Jenkins, who played the 'Royal British Legion March' written by Thomas Biggood in 1912.

Next on stage was the wonderful Noteworthy mixed voice choir of around 25 members under musical director Ryan Wood, assisted by accompanist Rhian Jenkins.

The choir started with the Vicar of Dibley's version of Howard Goodall's 'The Lord is my Shepherd', then 'Nella Fantasia' by Enio Morricone, Jeffrey Howard's 'Builth' finishing with Eric Jones's

'Tangnefeddwy'.

The silver band then played 'The golden lady' by Cornish musician Goff Richards, 'I'll walk with God' written by Nicholas Brodsky and Goff Richards' arrangement and 'Hollywood', again by Goff Richards.

Then came the Maesteg 'Gleemen' male voice choir under its musical director Alun Hodges assisted by accompanist Suzanne Hodges, starting with the wonderful 'Anthem' from Chess, Robert Arwyn's version of 'Benedictus'.

Then came Mansions of the Lord, accompanied on the cornet by the up and coming musician Geraint John, finishing with 'You Raise me up'.

The silver band then completed the first half before the interval with 'MacArthur Park' written by Jimmy Webb to Alan Fernie's arrangement.

It started the second half with Kenneth J Alford's the resounding 'Colonel Bogey'.

The chairman of the Maesteg branch of the Royal British Legion, Alan Lloyd, gave an address on the accomplishments of the Legion in the last 12 months, followed by the 'March of Standards', to the hymn 'Oh God our help in ages past'.

There were short talks by a few Maesteg clergy, 'The Last Post' played by Dan Evans of the silver band, two minutes silence, 'Reveille', then the hymn 'Guide me o thou great redeemer'.

The concert ended with the Welsh National Anthem.

CANDLE SERVICE

Susan Morgan, Cara Williams, Rebekah Nutty and Nerys Griffiths. Seated: Eifion Roberts and Colin Rees.

A NEW team is in place at the VIP dental centre in Cowbridge, and on Thursday, November 24, they are throwing open their doors between 2pm and 6.30pm and inviting existing and prospective patients to meet them.

The practice has now expanded, taking over the adjacent premises, and the extra space has enabled the team to increase the range of services on offer.

They also took the opportunity to install a ramp which has given full disabled access - solving a common problem for businesses in Cowbridge's main thoroughfare.

Visitors to the open day will automatically be entered into a raffle, and the prize is a ticket for a family of four to this year's pantomime in the New Theatre in Cardiff, Robinson Crusoe, with Christopher Biggins as the Dame.

VIP spokeswoman Susan Morgan said: "Now that the alterations are all completed, we are launching a new private dental scheme, which is flexible and affordable.

"We are offering the same level of treatment that people associate with private, but which is 15 per cent cheaper than traditional schemes."

People can join the scheme for a basic outlay of 35p per day, with worldwide dental insurance included.

Susan said: "At the open day, a series of experts and laboratory technicians who work with the team will be on hand to give advice and answer questions on the advanced dental treatments that are available.

SOUTHERNDOWN WI NEWS

AT the monthly meeting on November 10, president Meryl James ably took up her new position and pointed out to members that the institute was theirs – not the committee's or the county's.

Christmas (or new year) lunch was discussed and Southerndown Golf Club seemed a popular choice.

An outing was mentioned for next year, possibly to Denman College. Speakers will probably be alternated with home grown entertainment. Immediate event will be the carol service on December 14 at Penllyne.

The levels of bravery, devotion, patience, expertise, of our voluntary services never fail to impress and the Western Beacons Mountain Rescue service is no exception.

Nick Collins, a volunteer of this team, gave an enlightening talk, with a DVD show about the history, day to day involvement, training and costs of this worthy charity.

The local branch of the service is based at Sarn and was formed in 1933 as the Bridgend Mountain Rescue. The area covered stretches from Penarth to Aberaeron, the largest in the country. Volunteers are available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and rely entirely on the support and generosity of the public.

This is truly a noble charity, meriting the utmost support.

The next meeting is on December 8 at St Brides Major church hall at 7.15pm – Christmas party night!

Vouchers bring in gifts for pupils

TWO Vale primary schools and a nursery were presented with equipment and gifts from their local Tesco store in Culverhouse Cross.

Vale MP Alun Cairns handed the gifts to staff and children from Gwenfo C/W and St Nicholas C/W Primary Schools and the Culverhouse Day Nursery on behalf of Tesco store deputy manager David Davies.

The schools collected thousands of Tesco vouchers, which enabled them to select a mixture of IT, sports and classroom equipment.

Tesco has run its vouchers for schools and clubs scheme since 2009, and the local Culverhouse super-store regularly helps raise money for nominated charities.

Last year, the store raised £7,500 for Clic Sargent and aim to raise a significant amount for this year's nominated charity – the Alzheimer's Society.

News from Penarth and District Ramblers

Stepping into the local shoot!

GERAINT and his tri-coloured sheepdog Patch recently began a series of winter walks around the Wenvoe area, all of which begin from the War Memorial next to the village pub.

The group of five headed out past the 12th century village church dedicated to St Mary, the group took paths through houses to emerge into the fields above the Wenvoe garden centre, which led them to Burdonshill.

Entering part of the Wenvoe golf course, the group edged along the boundary to follow the footpath downhill.

Unfortunately, the group walked straight into the middle of the local shoot and had to wait until it was safe to continue.

After walking the length of the northern edge of the Goldsland Wood, the group crossed fields and eventually arrived at the long cairn at St Lythans. This Neolithic chambered tomb is also known as Gwal-y-Filiast, or the 'greyhound bitches kennel' as apparently it was once used as an animal shelter during the 1800s.

Circumnavigating the top end of the Goldsland Wood, it was interesting to note that the remains of seven Neolithic humans were excavated from a cave that stood between the wood and the burial chamber, together with pottery and flint blades.

Then turning south with views out towards the Bristol Channel, the group headed through sheep-filled fields in the Goldsland Valley and crossing the bridge over the Goldsland Brook climbed gently to New Wallace Farm.

They strolled along the lane that runs through the Wenvoe golf course which was founded in 1936 around Wenvoe Castle, a mansion house that was the home of Hugh Jenner the club's first president, before returning back to Wenvoe village.

On November 19, meet at 9am at the Wenvoe War Memorial for a four-mile easy/moderate walk taking in the Salmon Leaps at Cwrt yr Ala; contact Geraint on 029 2051 5278.

Apologies are sent because the planned walks in the programme for both November 20 and 22 have been cancelled.

Membership advice can be obtained from Pam on 02920 219102.

Arrests after police 'swab' town revellers

SOUTH WALES police report that two men were arrested concerning possession of drugs..during a pre-planned drugs operation in Porthcawl after officers swabbed the hands of those attending various pubs and clubs in the town centre on Saturday night.

A total of 97 tests were carried out, six of which were positive which resulted in two arrests for possession of drugs.

There were a further two arrests concerning public order offences during the operation and one Section 27

Direction to Leave Notice issued.

Sergeant Dave Williams of the Porthcawl Neighbourhood Policing Team said: "A high visibility multi-agency operation was conducted in Porthcawl town centre on Saturday night as part of our ongoing commitment to ensuring it is a safe and secure place to socialise.

"A drugs itemiser was utilised during the operation which required anyone entering some pubs and clubs to provide a hand swab for analysis."

The operation also saw officers attend numerous licensed premises in the town to ensure licensing conditions are being complied with.

ROYAL BRITISH LEGION PORTHCAWL POPPY APPEAL CONCERT SUCCESS

A CONCERT was held again this year in All Saints Church, Porthcawl, courtesy of the Rector, wardens and parishioners, to raise funds for the Poppy Appeal.

Following a trumpet fanfare by Robert Young, the Royal British Legion Standard and the Book of Remembrance were paraded in silence down the church aisle, carried respectively by standard bearer Ray Street and David Philpott, MBE.

They were accompanied by an escort to the altar, where the standard and book were presented to the Rector, Canon Philip Masson.

Following the singing of Hen Wlad fy Nhadau, the Rector, who is also Chaplain to the Royal British Legion's Porthcawl branch, in his opening address, extended a warm welcome to all those present.

The programme included performances by the parish handbell ringers, Sounds Familiar, the Kenfig Hill Male Voice Choir, the Mid Glamorgan Accordion Band and children of Aelwyd yr Urdd Porthcawl, who all gave their services voluntarily.

The chairman of the Royal British Legion's Porthcawl branch, Ruth Birch, gave her remarks and thanks during the course of the concert. The latter concluded with the Last Post, Exhortation, Reveille and Kohima Epitaph, after which the Royal British Legion Standard and Book of Remembrance were paraded back down the aisle, to the singing of 'Mansions of the Lord' by Sounds Familiar.

The proceeds from the concert realised the fantastic sum of £636 for the Poppy Appeal. Many thanks to all who took part and ensured its success.

Some ghostly goings on at Ogmore castle!

ESTABLISHED by Williams de Londres in 1116, the first castle on the site at Ogmore was constructed using earth and timber.

This was around the time of the Norman invasion, and eventually the castle and additional keep were built using stone for strength against enemy attack.

The inner ward is still visible, as well as the great tower, which was built by William's son Maurice de Londres, after his father's death in 1126.

It was likely to have been a spectacular sight as it spanned three stories with a fireplace on the ground floor. Staircases for the first floor were added for apartments to accommodate the Lord and his family.

Across from the main castle another building was added during the 12th Century, although only ruins of the cellar remain today.

The de Londres family still owned the castle during the 13th Century and they added more new buildings to the site where the foundations are still visible.

Buildings which probably stood there include a gatehouse and a great hall. Indications of an original drawbridge are still evident beside the gate passage.

However, the castle is unlikely to have figured in any substantial battles.

Other significant names relating to the castle include Payn de Chaworth, Lord of Kidwelly and his heiress Matilda who married Henry, Earl of Lancaster in 1298.

Ogmore castle then became part of the Duchy of Lancaster and served as a courthouse during the 14th Century.

The ghostly image of a man has been seen on many occasions by unsuspecting visitors, gliding across the stepping stones seemingly looking for hidden treasure.

Why would this lifelike gentleman want to return to the place where he failed in his quest to seek his fortune in another world now beyond his grasp?

The spectral image of a bearded man has been identified roaming around the castle grounds as if lost in time. Could this frightful figure be that of a poacher executed on the land many years ago, reluctant to leave the place where he met his end?

Another phantom entity has been seen crossing the water displaying himself as a soldier.

Could this gallant spirit be guarding someone during his time on the earth's plane, or just a confused spirit abandoned in an environment that he would no longer recognise?

The serene face of a little girl has been spotted at the window of the castle turret emulating the feeling of sadness.

Could this sad image be a reflection of the conditions of our distant past? the mysteries go on...

Musical delights in Rotary Clubs' young musician competition

THE Rotary Clubs of Bridgend and Porthcawl held their joint Young Musician competition on November 9, at All Saint's Church Porthcawl.

Seven local youngsters took part in the competition, playing instruments that included piano, bassoon, violin, organ, clarinet and even the tuba!

The audience were treated to music by Elgar, Bartok, Bach and Beethoven through to Benny Goodman and Waller.

The judges for the competition were, John Beddoe, Raymond Driscoll and John Foley., all accomplished music specialists, with a great deal of experience in teaching and in orchestral and ensemble playing. Chairman of the judges John Beddoe commented that: "It was marvellous to see the wonderful talent that we have in our schools; every participant was a winner".

After much deliberation, the first prize was awarded to Sophie Howe, a pianist from Porthcawl Comprehensive school, who played a piece by Clementi and also "The Alligator Crawl" by Waller.

The second prizewinner was Lucy Millership, a bassoonist, and third prize was won by Daniel Pugh-Bevan who played the church organ.

Both Lucy and Daniel also attend the Porthcawl Comprehensive School.

Sophie and Lucy will now compete in the Rotary District 1150 Area 7 Finals on December 7 in Swansea.

Handbell ringers swing into action at Porthcawl

The Parish Handbell Ringers rehearsing their Christmas Carol Programme in St. John's Church, Newton.

by KEITH E MORGAN

THE Parish Handbell Ringers are busy rehearsing ready for their Christmas carol programme.

If their rendering of 'Silent Night' at their recent rehearsal is anything to go by, it will be well worth attending one of their many festive displays.

The first of these will be on November 23 when they will be entertaining the sixth form of the Porthcawl Comprehensive School in the school hall.

Ringers are then taking part in the Christmas carols concert at the Grand Pavilion on November 28. On December 11 at 6pm, they are at St Colman's Church, Cefn Cribwr.

The following day, December 12, they are giving a private performance to the residents of Stoneleigh Court. The Ringers will also be entertaining at Parc Prison, Bridgend.

Rev Marja Flipse from Holland, who joined the Parish of Porthcawl, Newton and Nottage as a Curate last year, has made a musical niche for herself in the town.

Not only is the Rev Marja a member of the Ringers, but she has also taken an active singing roll with the prestigious Savoyards and was in the chorus of their recent presentation of The Gondoliers at The Grand Pavilion.

Marja's parents, who have recently retired and are currently in Porthcawl on vacation, have been proud to witness Marja's success in both her parish work and what appears to be her new found 'musical talents'.

The GEM is in partnership with the Dog's Trust to find caring homes for animals in their charge at Bridgend Rehoming Centre. (Telephone: 01656 725219)

JACK NEEDS A CUDDLE!

THIS WEEK: Jack is a 5-year-old Lab Whippet, who is friendly and loves nothing more than a fuss and a cuddle!

He can be a little sensitive in new situations, but he just needs a loving owner to give him the confidence he needs. He is a playful boy, and will give you hours of fun playing with his toys.

He can be left alone for a few hours, but due to his sensitive nature, he is looking for an older home, from teenage and up.

If you are interested in Jack, please call Dogs Trust Bridgend on 01656 725219, or pop in to visit us at Court Colman, Pen-y-Fai, Bridgend. Our opening times are Tuesday-Sunday, 12pm-4pm.

Bryncethin run in tries at Tonyrefail

Tonyrefail under-11s 7
Bryncethin under-11s 35

A CRISP morning saw Bryncethin travel with a large squad.

Yet again the coaches started with a mixture to give the newer members of the squad further experience.

The match started slowly with the Bryncethin youngsters finding it difficult to adapt to the interpretations of the referee.

To their credit, though, they started to go through the phases and this led to the opening try for Jack Thomas.

The home team tried to apply pressure but the Bryncethin defence held up well with Scott Murrell, Daniel Osarigie and Jak Thomas all showing excellent technique.

The second and third tries were again a result of the ball going through the hands.

New boy Luke Lockyer scored his first try for Bryncethin following good work by Tobias Hunt and Tomas Jones.

Josh Napper went over in the corner following a fluid move to score the final try of the first half.

A number of changes saw Bryncethin struggle in the early stages of the second half and Tonyrefail took advantage to score a converted try.

As the game progressed the superior power of Bryncethin took over, with Rhys Davies, Aaron Thomas and Scott Ryall all making good ground.

From a penalty Finlay Mullens fed Tobias Hunt, who powered through a number of challenges to go over for a score and, in a carbon copy, Joshua Thomas scored the fifth try near the end.

All the scores were converted by Jack Thomas.

The coaches wish to convey their thanks to the players for their attitude towards the squad rotation as they strive to give all the boys some game time.

It's fantastic to see the squad going from strength to strength and with the long winter months ahead there will be plenty of opportunities for all the players to shine.

Try scorers: Jack Thomas, Luke Lockyer, Josh Napper, Tobias Hunt and Joshua Thomas.

Athletic lose out in derby encounter

LOCAL derbies are often decided by hunger and desire - which team wants it the most.

This game was no different. Tondy came out with a game plan to play at pace and with a very physical approach - the Athletic, in contrast, were leaden-footed, often one-dimensional in their game and certainly lacked the physicality needed in a local derby.

Last season's climb to third place in the Swalec league was built around an excellent defence - unfortunately, this season a number of players are letting their colleagues down in this department.

Tondy came out with all guns blazing, barely allowing the Athletic to get their hands on the ball in the first five minutes. The pressure told with the Athletic conceding a penalty, which was converted by full-back Dean Thomas.

The Athletic also suffered a blow losing prop Dan Suter with a damaged nose. Eventually, the Athletic did get into the game and debutant outside-half Josh Davies scythed through the home defence from halfway.

The move broke down five metres short of the Tondy tryline but scrum-half Aled Thomas was on hand to side step his way over the line. Stuart Morris converted to put the Athletic 7-3 ahead.

Tondy came back at the Athletic and a second Dean Thomas penalty reduced the home side deficit to 7-6. Five minutes later, Tondy spurned a kickable penalty and ran the ball. The move broke down, but from a resultant scrum they moved the ball wide for lock Stephen Bevan to pop on the wing and dive over in the corner to put Tondy ahead at 11-7.

Ath under-11s are too strong

BRIDGEND Athletic under-11s played away to Kenfig Hill and in a closely-contested first half, both teams played some good rugby.

Both defences tackled well but it was the Ath who managed to open the scoring.

Some great handling from the Ath saw the ball make its way out to Megan Webb who managed to score in the corner.

Kasari Mehta converted to make the score 7-0 to the Ath at half time.

The second half saw Kenfig Hill come out strong, and some good pressure saw the home side run in three converted tries, making it 21-7.

Credit to the Ath as they kept battling and were rewarded when Jack Obbard drove well to go over and score; Kasari Mehta converted.

Final score Bridgend 14, Kenfig Hill 21. The second game saw Bridgend taking advantage of some good early attacking play with Charles Creffield score early on.

Kasari Mehta converted to make it 7-0 to the Ath.

A great run from Megan Webb saw her score the Ath's second try of the game, and Sam Veasey converted to extend the Ath's lead to 14-0.

The final try of the match went to Megan Webb who was set free after some good passing from Ath.

Sam Veasey converted to make the final score Bridgend 21, Kenfig Hill 0.

Stuart Nation with Rhys Jones in support.

The Athletic suffered a second injury blow when their September player of the month and leading try scorer Rhys Jones, was forced off with what looked a serious ankle injury. They were also forced to play the last 10 minutes of the half with hooker Stuart Nation in the sin bin.

Tondy piled on the pressure in this period, but were unable to again breach the Athletic defence.

The Athletic kicked off the second half with a kick down the middle of the field to the Tondy 22. A ruck formed and Tondy moved the ball wide. A missed tackle allowed full-back Dean Thomas to race away.

Interpassing with scrum-half Joe Heatley led to an excellent try for Heatley to give the home side daylight on the scoreboard with a 16-7 lead. This soon became 19-7 with a third Thomas penalty.

The Athletic pack was reduced to pick and go tactics. They failed to quickly move the ball from rucks and mauls, giving the home side plenty of time to organise their defence.

The Ath supporters were longing to see the old style interchange of passes and offloads from tackles and high tempo play normally associated with the Athletic. When the ball was moved wide, it was ponderous and easily snuffed out by the home side.

It was no surprise when Tondy extended their lead with a high tempo move, finished off by wing Mark Roberts and converted by Thomas to put his side 26-7 ahead.

Tondy were now looking for a bonus point try. They attempted a long pass on halfway which the alert Aled Thomas intercepted to run in unopposed for his second try. Morris converted.

Both sides were looking to finish the game with a bonus point - but the game stagnated in the middle of the park and Tondy were well worth their win.

For the Athletic, hooker Stuart Nation, flanker Kyle Galtry and Rod Apsee were the pick of the pack. Scrum-half Aled Thomas was a livewire in attack, but must get his backline moving with quicker distribution from loose play.

The Athletic have a big squad, reflected in the 35 players picked so far in this league campaign. The coaches are struggling to find the best combination of players, with many of equal ability in many key positions. This is making it difficult to get a pattern of play and confidence associated with a winning mentality.

The Athletic have now finished the midpoint of the season on 22 points from four wins and seven defeats. The only mitigating factor is that seven of the 11 games have been played away from home.

This Saturday will be the eighth away game as they look for a league double at fellow strugglers Bonymaen who are also facing a contrasting season to the last campaign.

Athletic Seconds shine at Beddau

AGAIN showing a strong starting line-up and quality bench, the Athletic Seconds travelled to table-topping Beddau expecting a fierce encounter with the home side.

The start was delayed as a colour clash necessitated Beddau to change their jerseys but as soon as play commenced the Athletic showed their intention by sending wave after wave of attackers at Beddau as they spread the ball all over the field.

When the home team did regain possession it was under great pressure and outside-half Mike Hathaway charged down his opposite number's clearance to re-gather and race under the posts for Tom Parry to convert.

Soon after, from a clean lineup tap, the ball was transferred from Tom Davies to Hathaway and Leroy Pemberton. His loose pass was well retrieved by Nick Hinton before timing his pass to Craig Chalmers.

The nippy wing out-paced the covering defence for a try out wide.

At last Beddau managed to exert some pressure but as the Athletic were shoved back close to their own line Tom Davies slipped the ball to Parry who found Ben Howe. The flanker raced up to his own 10 metre line before passing on to the supporting Jonny Mustoe.

He swayed to the outside before stepping inside and outstripping the cover to dive over under the posts; Parry converted.

Beddau reverted to type, as penalties in mid-field were kicked to the corner and a well-drilled driving maul from a lineup got the scoreboard rolling for them with a converted try.

There followed more of the same style of play as misdemeanours by the Athletic gave them field position and a dominant scrum had the visitors on the back foot.

Even as they were in retreat though the ball found its way to Mustoe on the blindside.

His kick ahead was chased down by Howe, whose tenacious work at the breakdown forced a penalty. Mustoe tapped quickly to the supporting flanker Callum MacLeod.

His run into space allowed Pemberton to get up on hand to receive the scoring pass for Parry to again convert the bonus point try.

From a further counter-attack the Athletic forced a penalty for Parry to knock it over, but as the half drew to a close a powerful scrum drive by Beddau resulted in an unconverted try, making the half-time score 29-12 in the Athletic's favour.

Early in the second half, a counter attack by Pemberton saw the full-back put in an awkward looking chip over the home defence for Parry to re-gather and burst over for a try that he converted himself.

Soon after a tap from the lineup by Morgan Evans was driven on by captain Nathan Holman. The ball then reached Pemberton, who raced through some poor defending for his second try.

Things didn't turn out quite so well for the Athletic full-back a little later when he was caught in possession and gave away a penalty.

Beddau took full advantage and a quickly taken penalty allowed them to reduce the arrears, but the Athletic were unstoppable at this point.

Parry carried the ball strongly and when the ball was recycled MacLeod ran to the blind-side before passing to the enthusiastic replacement wing Andrew Tyler, who took his chance and raced over from 30 metres out.

At last Beddau attempted to move the ball, and with some success as they laid siege to the Athletic line, searching for their own bonus point try but to no avail.

With only seconds to go, MacLeod's charge down gathered the ball into his midriff and he galloped over for the final score of the game.

PYLE AND KENFIG GOLF CLUB NEWS

Pyle and Kenfig Juniors have had a hugely successful season.

Juniors' tremendous ten end season with a flourish

WHAT a season it was for Pyle and Kenfig Juniors.

They won the inaugural Rhys Davies Trophy in Royal Porthcawl some weeks ago and more recently came a super second to Celtic Manor, losing by a single shot in the Welsh Team Championships in Builth Wells; there will never be a closer result than that!

However, there was still the final of the Glamorgan Championship to be played against the Vale of Glamorgan at Royal Porthcawl, the venue of their earlier success.

P&K were in no mood to come second this time; they won two of the three matches, lost one and halved the reserves match, becoming the 2011 county champions – what a year!

The junior section enjoyed the full and active support of the captain, committee, club members and very special efforts of junior leader, Ian Booth.

Congratulations must go to the team.

On so many occasions throughout the season they have salvaged victory from the jaws of defeat.

Their determination, desire and ability to win have been outstanding, but above all, they have given 100 per cent for each other – a real team success.

The tremendous ten who made up the various teams are: Jamie Jones, Leon McNally, Tom Beale, Bradley Young, Tom Furneaux, Rhodri Booth, Jake Prosser, Ben Vance-Daniel, Cameron Morris, George Beale.

Porthcawl under-13s show power

Porthcawl under-13s 43
Taibach under-13s 5

HAVING recovered from a poor start to their campaign, Porthcawl under-13s travelled West to face Taibach full of confidence, and with four consecutive victories under their belt.

With a full squad at his disposal, coach Andrew Richards fielded possibly his most powerful team of the season.

From the kick off it was clear that Taibach had not read the script, as poor ball retention by the Porthcawl backs from the first handling move of the game allowed the Taibach winger to race over from the halfway line to score the game's first try.

Stung by this early reversal, the young Seaweeds fought their way back, patiently settling into the game and not panicking after falling behind to such an early score.

Their forwards soon began to dominate, with impressive breaks by Leon Evans and Ben Jones, allowing half backs Tom Cogbill and Ethan Walsh to control play.

Having impressed all season, fullback Ollie Woodall rounded off a flowing movement that started deep inside Porthcawl's own 22 for the Seaweeds' first score.

It was followed immediately from the kick-off by their second, scored by skipper Joe Williams, who also converted both tries.

The first half saw two further tries for Porthcawl, scored by winger Will Jones and another for Joe Williams.

The second half started very much as the first had ended, Porthcawl on the attack and Taibach stubbornly defending.

Interplay by centres Ben Lacey and Jack Palmer resulted in a brace of tries for loose forward Louis Preece as continual pressure finally saw the valiant Taibach defensive line disintegrate.

Rhys Thomas scored the game's final try converted by Ioan Bluck.

Despite occasional lapses in concentration, this game was by far the best performance of the season for Porthcawl's under-13s, with forwards and backs linking as a team and not as individuals.

Phoenix put in great advert for women's rugby

THIS championship Division 1 match was a great advertisement for women's rugby with end to end play, and both sides totally committed throughout.

Gorseinon were first on the attack and only a tremendous try-saving tackle from Phoenix flanker Amy Stevens on her own line prevented a score.

However, it was Phoenix who opened the scoring, hooker Natalie O'Shea intercepting some 60 metres out and showing good pace to score.

Jade Mullen converted, but Gorseinon hit back immediately with a try.

Phoenix then moved the ball wide and full back Sarah Hughes out-paced the cover defence to lead 14-5.

The home scrum half then split the Phoenix defence for a converted try. Lauren Robson added a penalty for Phoenix to lead 17-12, and they further extended their lead prior to the interval.

The backs moved the ball for supporting outside half Mullen to score.

Phoenix led at the break 22-12.

During the interval the home official allowed Gorseinon to revert to passive scrums, and this was to change the course of the match as the Phoenix pack had been dominant at the scrum, taking ball almost at will against the head.

With Phoenix down to 14 players for a yellow card and having to defend, skipper Marina Newth pulled off a crunching tackle before back row colleague Stevens made a double tackle within seconds.

The home side then came back to 19-22 before O'Shea stormed over from 40 metres, only for the score to be disallowed for a dubious foot in touch call from the linesman!

Phoenix then extended their lead to 29-19, but with Gorseinon returning to the attack the referee then awarded the home side a penalty try to the bewilderment of the Phoenix players and supporters.

Worse was to follow for Phoenix; they received two yellow cards for technical offences and had to play virtually all that remained of the match with 13 players.

Phoenix played admirably until the fourth minute of injury time when Gorseinon got what proved to be the winning score.

Phoenix were not finished, however. They responded superbly to the promptings of Newth for centre Robson to crash over, only to be denied by the referee's decision to disallow the score!

Seconds later, at the sound of the final whistle, the Phoenix players stood in utter disbelief at having this game taken away from them having given everything they had against the odds!

TR

Ath under-12s win

ON a sunny autumn day, the Ath under-12s welcomed Kenfig Hill to Newbridge Fields for their first home game for six weeks.

The Ath had the wind in the first half and quick ball from the forwards allowed the backs to run at Kenfig Hill.

The Mules' pack played well and the Ath had to work hard to make ground.

After a number of driving mauls the ball was released to the backs and quick passing from Ieuan Thomas and Joe Patterson put Caine Woolerton in near the posts.

A few minutes later it was like groundhog day, when the same personnel combined to put Caine in for try number two.

Callum Morgan was seeing a lot of the ball and had some good runs down the left wing.

who used his pace to sprint over from forty yards.

Kenfig Hill then stormed back and had a good spell of ascendancy in which they scored two deserved tries to make the score 24-14 at the break.

A raft of changes were made at half time and the strength of the squad could be seen as the Ath continued to play well.

Iwan Osbourne and Adam Murathodzie made good contributions and with Tom Zielinski and Joe Grabham continuing their rich vein of form the Ath carried on creating chances.

The next try came from the Ath's own line when a couple of astute passes under pressure gave Joe Patterson a bit of room and he used his pace to run seventy yards to touch down.

al attacks, with Rhys Gamble making a number of telling tackles.

However, the Ath always looked dangerous when running with the ball and the next two tries were scored by Dylan Parry, again using his pace to outstrip everyone on his way to the try line.

The scoring was rounded off with Caine Woolerton getting his hat-trick try and Nathan Willis sprinting over to touch down as the final whistle went.

Nine tries and six conversions meant the Ath won an entertaining encounter by 57-12.

Kenfig Hill played some very good rugby and with a little bit of luck could have scored a couple more tries – thanks to their players and supporters for the morning's rugby.

This win showed the strength and versatility of the squad all of whom are playing good attacking rugby and hopefully the boys can continue to play this entertaining brand of rugby.

COWBRIDGE COMPREHENSIVE SCHOOL SPORTS ROUND-UP

Pupils star in cross-country event

CROSS COUNTRY

THE south Wales girls' cross-country championships were recently held at Trelai Park.

In the senior race, Fiona Bray had a good run despite a stomach upset and finished in 6th place, followed by Jessica Jaques, who is improving with every race, finishing 7th and Nikita John finished in 9th place.

Bethan White filled in with only hours of notice to complete the team and ran well to finish 26th. An excellent performance – the team finished first!

In the years 9 and 10 race, Ela Emyr had a good run to finish 12th, followed by Rebecca Thomas (21st), Nadine James (23rd) and Alice Tudor in 40th. The A team came 3rd.

Next in for Cowbridge was Brooke Langdon Cryer in 60th, Sally Gambling (67th), Millie Green (68th) and Tilly Hall (69th) completing the B team, who came first. Eleanor Hicks, Ffion Hopkins and Megan Langdon Cryer also ran coming 76th, 77th and 83rd respectively. There were 150 runners so all Cowbridge runners excelled themselves.

In year 7 and 8 race, Seren Allin led from start to finish in fine fashion! Second in for Cowbridge was year-7 pupil Sanant Emyr in 23rd, Cerys Bradshaw (33rd) and Selina Radcliffe (36th), making up the A team who came first.

In the B team, who came first, Jemma Viney came 52nd, Lowri Morgan (56th), Alicia Thomas (65th) and Ffion Vickers (67th).

In the C team, who came first, Sophie Oddy came 73rd, Megan Roberts (77th), Sophie Harpin (99th), Niamh Jenkins (100th).

Eleanor Farr, Rhiannon Medlicott and Esme Freeman also ran, coming 155, 156th and 157th respectively. There were 202 finishers!

The girls will now go on to compete in the Welsh National Cross Country in Brecon on Saturday, November 19.

HOCKEY

HOWELLS were strong opposition right from the first whistle of the first round of the year-11 tournament.

Although we had a few attacking plays, Howells dominated the game and we spent most of the time defending in our own 25.

Sophie Thomas saved several shots at goal before Howells were successful and the score was 1-0 at half-time.

The second half saw us play a better attacking game and we had a few unsuccessful attempts at goal.

Eventually, Howells scored again and we lost 2-0 at full time. Special mention to player of the match, Izzy Eddy Williams who was outstanding in defence.

RUGBY

OLIVER HITCHINGS and Gus Rees McPherson were selected for a match for the Welsh academics v Christ College, Brecon on October 12.

The Welsh Academics won 55-5 and reports suggest that both of the Cowbridge players put in outstanding performances, well done to both players!

The school senior rugby side put in an outstanding performance to beat Glantaf 16-12 in a hard fought match in dreadful conditions last week.

Captain Gus Rees McPherson was delighted with the way in which the school side pulled back from being 10 points behind to claim a vital win that also pushes Cowbridge top of the table of the national school premier league.

With the score at 12-3 at half-time to the visitors, Cowbridge rallied hard and outside-half Rhys Griffin controlled the game sensibly with some fine field kicks.

With Cowbridge spending much of the second half on top, there were a number of quick penalties awarded to the home side and new kicker Adam Roscrow had the coolness and skill to edge Cowbridge back into the game.

As the Cowbridge forwards picked up the tempo, Griffin pushed Glantaf back onto the defence again. When Tom Cunningham was able to pressurise the Glantaf lineout, substitute Connor Wyatt was able to pounce on the attempted chargedown to finally put Cowbridge into the lead.

As the game entered a thrilling conclusion, Glantaf pushed hard for a score but the Cowbridge defence stood firm to claim a great victory.

Back row forward Oliver Hitchings was outstanding throughout the contest for the home side, highlighting the many hours that he is dedicating to improving his fitness in the school gym. As well as being a huge asset for the school team, Oliver has also been in fine form for the Blues under-18s where, along with captain Gus Rees McPherson, reports suggest that both players have potential to develop into elite athletes in their chosen sport, well done boys!

last week with a comfortable 45-0 victory away to Bro Morgannwg.

Playing without many District players, the school side gave opportunities to less experienced pupils who stepped up to the mark in fine fashion.

With the game taking place on a seriously boggy pitch, outside-half Alex Guard controlled the second half well with a tremendous display of kicking.

Alex was once again helped by a fantastic performance from scrum-half Harry Goodfellow, who delivered perfect service time after time for the Cowbridge backline.

There were also some outstanding performances in the backline from Daniel Evans and captain Nicky Griffiths. Both of these boys are starting to form one of the best centre pairings that the school has seen and they are both devoted trainers.

Up front, Daniel Holder gave another inspired performance and made some great yards with a number of powerful and aggressive runs. Marc Herbert has also been much improved this season, and was often found at the bottom of a ruck or maul winning the ball for his side. Thomas Higgins also performed well and gave 100 per cent as usual.

The team have won the previous two games playing against year-11 teams from Barry and Llantwit respectively. Both games produced scorelines of 50-0 to Cowbridge and with players of this quality coming through the ranks, the school will be strong at senior level in the coming years.

On November 8, Cowbridge year-7 rugby team met a strong Stanwell side, for Cowbridge's fourth game of the season.

Both teams were very well organised, with some brilliant hands along the line, hard runs and big collisions. The first 10 minutes were even and neither side could break down the other's defence. The first try of the match was scored by Rhys Bradshaw, who made a weaving run through the defence, outpaced the winger on the outside, and managed to place the ball down right in the corner.

The lead was extended further by Bevan Howells, who cut the defence in half with a dummy to his right, and then a sidestep through the gap which this had created.

Stanwell were definitely not going to take a loss lying down, and came back with a try of their own. The try was scored by a superbly executed chip and chase for one of the tries of the match.

Cowbridge quickly responded just before half-time, with another try from Bevan. This try was a consequence of defensive pressure from Cowbridge, whose fast line speed forced the Stanwell backs into making a mistake, and then this was capitalised upon.

The second half started, and Cowbridge left off where they finished the first. With Cowbridge throwing the ball along the line with some silky skills, Morgan Gore finished off a stunning try by rounding the defenders.

Cowbridge did not let off the gas, and Max Cunningham powered through the defence, driving his legs until he was over the line.

Stanwell came back with their own try after this, and their winger scored the try of the match. He picked the ball up in his 22, ran down the wing, cut back inside near the half-way line and sprinted for the line.

Cowbridge were not finished just yet, and Rhys Bradshaw scored his second try with another trademark jinking run through the heart of the defence. Morgan Gore and Bevan Howells both slotted two conversions each, and the scores finished 38-12.

Well done again boys, you all work tirelessly on the pitch and are a joy to coach/teach!

NETBALL

THE year 7 and 8 netball teams played Llantwit away on Wednesday November 9.

The year-8s played first and got off to a fantastic start, turning over Llantwit's first centre pass to secure the first goal. From then on, the Cowbridge girls worked solidly in defence to prevent the Llantwit attack from creating any real goal scoring opportunities, and Cowbridge were leading 9-0 at half-time!

In the second half, the Cowbridge team had a complete change in positions to facilitate versatility and encourage a closer fought game.

Despite being out of position, with defenders, playing in attack, and attackers playing in defence, they pulled together as a team, stuck to the basics and were still able to improve on the scoreline.

The final score was an excellent 16-0 win to Cowbridge.

Well done to Lucy Housley (GS), Olivia Jones (GA), Jemma Viney (WA), Maya Bell (C), Sashini Jaysinghe and Cerys Bradshaw (WD), Ffion Vickers (GD) and Emma (GK).

The year-7 team of Sophie Oddy, Robin Edwards, Selina Radcliffe, Nia Davies, Ellen Masters, Hannah Sloan and Eleanor Lewis were extremely excited to be playing their first away fixture.

Nerves were evident at the start of the game, when our first centre pass went astray and Llantwit secured the first goal. The girls quickly settled down into the flow of play and were able to combine some excellent passes and linking play to bring the ball down the court successfully.

The Llantwit team had an outstanding GA who secured every shot on goal and made it difficult for the Cowbridge girls to close the score line. The game finished 8-2 to Llantwit.

The Cowbridge team now need to focus on creating space off the ball and controlling footwork ahead of their next game against Stanwell. Player of the match year-8 was Jemma Viney and year-7 Nia Davies.

Strong start
The year 10 and senior netball teams played Bryn Hafren at home on Tuesday, November 8.

The year-10s played first and got off to a strong start, securing the first three goals of the match.

The game quickly turned into a fast-paced and frantic battle as Bryn Hafren fought back. Going into the second half, the Cowbridge girls were ahead by just one goal and showed great composure to remain calm and collected to hold on to their lead.

In the closing stages of the match, Bryn Hafren equalised adding pressure to the Cowbridge shooters, Jo Wilkins and Lydia Hitchings.

However, excellent attacking play and control resulted in the opportunity to win the game and the Cowbridge girls capitalised on their opportunity to secure a 8-7 win.

A mention for excellent play should go to Hannah Woodward at WA and Annabel Curle at centre, and the girl of the game award went to Olivia Brown at GD.

The senior team got off to a slower start against an experienced Bryn Hafren side who forged ahead 5-1 in the early stages.

The Cowbridge girls soon settled, got their composure and began to fight back. Excellent defensive play from Molly Lamb at GD and Bethan Moorcraft at GK, prevented many goal scoring opportunities and created turnovers to enable the Cowbridge attack to capitalise. The score was 7-3 to Bryn Hafren at half-time.

In the second half, the Cowbridge girls came out extremely determined and with some brilliant linking play between Lilly Crane at C and Olivia Brooks at WA, the Cowbridge attack were able to create goal scoring opportunities and capitalised on them.

Despite the final score being 10-8 to Bryn Hafren, the Cowbridge girls actually won the second half 5-3, which is a huge credit to their characters and determination to succeed.

An excellent team performance, well done. A special thank you to Annabel Curle, Jo Wilkins and Lydia Hitchings for playing up for the senior team as well.

The year-8 netball teams played Stanwell at home on Thursday, November 3.

The 8A team had secured a win against Stanwell earlier in the year and the Stanwell girls were eager for revenge.

The team of Lucy Housley (GS), Olivia Jones (GA), Seren Allin (WA), Maya Bell (C), Jemma Viney (WD), Ffion Vickers (GD) and Sashini Jaysinghe (GK) started solidly and the score was 6-4 to Cowbridge at half-time.

The heavens opened in the second half and the girls altered their game to adapt to the varying conditions and were able to forge ahead. The As won 6-4.

The B team squad, consisting of Issy Fisher, Annie Lloyd, Lauren David, Cerys Bradshaw, Megan Duncombe, Molly Price, Charlotte Adams, Sian Smith, Hannah Crosby and Abbie Price were also hit with horrendous rain just as the game got under way, but it did not dampen their spirits.

Excellent defence from Charlotte Adams, Hannah Crosby and Megan Duncombe prevented Stanwell from securing many goal scoring opportunities and kept the Cowbridge girls in the game. The poor weather prevented a high scoring game and Stanwell secured a 4-1 win.

ANOTHER MEMORABLE EVENING AS SUPPER CLUB SAYS THANK YOU TO DAVID EAST

LLANTWIT MAJOR Supper Club recently gathered for a special evening.

Although every Supper Club evening has been special, on this occasion there was no official guest speaker or question and answer format, as the members of the Supper Club wanted to thank David East for his past efforts in establishing an event that has become the envy of clubs throughout Wales, with a guest list that encompasses a virtual 'who's who' of Welsh sporting legends and celebrities.

When David East and Dewi Evans met in the lounge at Llantwit Major RFC back in March 2004 they decided to provide an opportunity for grassroots supporters to meet in an informal atmosphere and mix with their heroes, legends, top sportsmen and administrators in an informal gathering.

Although not intended to raise money, such has been the success of the Supper Club that many good causes, particularly local, have benefited from donations.

A fun evening, yet often there have been some profound statements and snippets as guests share the highs and lows of some incredible lifetimes and careers; from the hilarity of Phil Steele to the more sober Steve Hansen, the then-Welsh coach being the first guest to set the ball rolling and tipping a young Gethin Jenkins as a player to watch.

The evening with Bleddwyn Williams, Dr Jack Matthews and Gren was my particular favourite, so many great memories that would not have been possible without David and Dewi's efforts.

Since David has left the area to move to Nottingham for family reasons, Dewi has taken over David's role as MC for the evening.

Dewi has taken to the role like a duck to water, as well as continuing to ensure quality guests are lined up and the whole evening runs smoothly.

Dewi explained the reasons for the longer than usual period between gatherings and re-iterated the concept of the Supper Club, promising that while it was great to be here to celebrate the 29th Supper Club, the unofficial committee were determined there will be more to come which brought a rousing round of applause from all those present.

Dewi thanked Graham Lane, Malcolm Cole, Keith Payne and Graham Morgan for their important roles and support, but also stressed that without the overwhelming support of the regular attendees such evenings may not have been possible.

After another excellent meal served and provided by the Fourth Horseshoe caterers, Dewi began proceedings by welcoming principal guests Dennis Gethin, president of the WRU, Roger Lewis, WRU group chief executive, Squadron Leader Simon Lane, St Athan, Howard Jones, Glamorgan County RFC, Roger Davies, former Glamorgan cricketer, and Brian Davies formerly Neath, Llanelli and Wales rugby star, who is now a renowned artist.

Dewi pointed to the tables and mentioned other celebrities present including Onllwyn Brace (rugby/broadcasting), Terry Casey (soccer/FIFA), Simon Hill (rugby) and Alan Baird (WRU fitness guru) who, like Dennis and Roger, had only just returned from Wales' brilliant showing in New Zealand.

And there were more – top referees Derek Bevan and Nigel Whitehouse, and a host of others, including a good turn out from the South Wales Police; apologies for omissions, but such is the respect for David East it would be impossible to mention everyone.

Talking of apologies, Dewi had a long list. Tony Lewis (Glamorgan cricket) and Nicky Piper (boxing) were particularly disappointed not to be able to attend.

The special presentation of the evening was to be to yet another unsung hero in the community. Dewi went on to colourfully paint a picture of some of the highlights of this gentleman's past.

A regular to the Supper Club, educated at Cowbridge Grammar and St Lukes College, Exeter, before returning to Llantwit.

Teaching in Barry, a former Llantwit RFC player, committeeman and trustee since 1962, he worked alongside the late great George Bird.

Dewi pointed out this person's great contribution as coach of the famous Silver Ball winning sides of 1963/64 and 1964/65.

Dewi recalled the 1968 annual pilgrimage to Twickenham when this person caused quite a 'sheik' up at the time among the WRU hierarchy, completely hoodwinking Ivor Jones, the then-president.

Dressed as an Arab Prince with the late Jeff Kellerher similarly attired at his aide and arriving at the hotel in a posh limo, John Llewellyn Thomas was invited to attend the game as a guest of the union and even had a police escort to the ground!

In recognition of his hard work for Llantwit Major RFC over the years, Dewi asked Howard Jones to present a Supper Club dragon to JL.

Dewi then handed the mike over to David East who said how delighted he was to travel down from Nottingham for the evening and especially pleased to be called upon to make the second presentation to a close friend, Howard Jones, known by many as 'Mr Silver Ball' through his efforts in organising one of Wales' most prestigious rugby competitions.

Howard has spent a lifetime working tirelessly to make Glamorgan county rugby the success story it is, especially when you see how the professional game has seen many counties cease to exist.

As fixture secretary and secretary Howard has run the county side in meticulous fashion, allowing them to field sides to help clubs throughout the district, and even further afield to celebrate centenaries and other milestones in style, and of course there have been numerous charity games.

A Glamorgan county cap is one of the most prized possessions in Welsh rugby, and David East said he was honoured to be president of the county before handing over to Dennis Gethin recently, and thanked Howard for his tremendous efforts over the years.

Howard responded in his own modest, inimitable style, bringing howls of laughter from the room, yet he was obviously taken aback by the presentation from David East of a silver supper club dragon to mark his long and successful service to Glamorgan county and Welsh rugby.

Next Dewi called upon WRU president Dennis Gethin to say a few words.

Dennis pointed out that his first dealings with David were during the troubled times of the miners' strike but they later became good friends.

Dennis said he felt privileged to speak at a function thanking David East who, for decades, was one of the most prominent men in Welsh sport – boxing, rugby, cricket, and in particular, his involvement with a host of sports when in charge of South Wales Police, who were a major force in Welsh rugby providing some fine internationals.

Dennis then called upon Dewi to present a unique gift to David, a magnificent portrait commissioned from Brian Davies one of Wales' most talked about portrait artist, who uses his talent to help support cystic fibrosis.

Brian's book superbly illustrated would make a fantastic Christmas gift for sports followers.

Brian also spoke briefly to express his honour and privilege to produce a portrait of a very big man in Welsh sport, a figurehead to be looked up to.

David East accepted the incredible portrait with a great deal of emotion and thanked Brian for being so kind in his interpretation which was done from photographs.

Turning to Dewi, David said what a wonderful job Dewi had done in making the Supper Club so popular.

David said when he moved away for personal reasons he hoped the Supper Club would not die and in fact it is still blossoming thanks to Dewi's efforts.

David said like most great things it happens because people want it and modestly played down his role in the Supper Club.

He went on to say he was a lucky man, having enjoyed a great police career and being involved for many years with a variety of sports.

David pointed to the two referees present, Derek Bevan, who he rated the best-ever, and Nigel Whitehouse, a poacher-turned-gamekeeper who played for the Police side when David was involved, as did Phil Noble a talented scrum half. David shared a few memories of some tours with the Police XV's which are covered by the 'what goes on tour, stays on tour' rule!

David openly confessed to being sports mad, and thanked those present for their support over the years and expressed his honour in being invited back for the evening.

Initially, he was almost lost for words, and his thank-you to those present came from the heart.

After a warm round of applause for David, Roger Lewis WRU group chief executive expressed his respect for a great former secretary of the WRU who had contributed so much to Welsh rugby, particularly through the South Wales Police set-up.

Roger spoke of his visits to the Supper Club and the warm welcome and friendship offered to him by everyone – Dewi and David in particular.

He described it as an evening of warm friendship, brotherhood, a family, an honouring of old times and constant view to the future, what the game is all about, and what sport is about.

Certainly David's forceful character has helped promote and improve the game with David having a big influence in the establishment of leagues during his time as WRU Secretary.

Roger Davies, the

former Glamorgan cricketer, also stood to thank David for his involvement with Glamorgan cricket, especially as president.

Roger said, as everyone knows, he himself has become famous for two reasons; firstly for dropping Sobers when he hit six sixes in an over (although he did actually catch it before stumbling over the boundary), and secondly for being struck on the head and almost killed when fielding in close.

Roger was more than that, a great cricketer in his own right and a great judge of men, and he felt like many that David should have had a longer stint as Glamorgan president.

Warned by the comments of guest celebrities and also several speakers from the floor, who laid testament to David's humbleness, honesty, enthusiasm, commitment, concern and unflinching efforts, David once again took the mike, reminiscing on the first ever Supper Club with Steve Hansen, followed by Derek Bevan, who is as good a speaker as he was a referee.

He spoke of his love of all sports, recalling the football World Cup of 1966 when he chauffeured Dr Kaiser and managed to see all of England's games plus many of the sights of Britain.

His time involved with South Wales Police also brought fantastic memories.

To conclude the evening, Llantwit Major RFC chairman, Alan Davies, presented David with new club ties.

One thing for sure is that all who have been fortunate to have met David East concur that it is a pleasure to know him – a true giant in sport.

KARATE STUDENTS KEEP SPORT IN THE FAMILY

VALE Karate's byword is 'karate for everyone,' and its membership includes a high percentage of families training together – a prime example being the Christoforato family.

Bradley (14), and 11-year-old Kloe have been training with Vale Karate since they were young children, Bradley beginning karate in 2002 as a five-year-old, with Kloe joining him in 2005 when she was four.

Two years later, both mum and dad, Heidi and Craig, started training.

Both Bradley and Kloe have had huge success, winning titles across Britain, including seven individual Welsh Karate Governing Body titles between them, and both are current Welsh champions.

Heidi has started competing relatively recently, however, she has already tasted success with a silver medal at the British Championships in October.

The latest Welsh karate league event, which took place in Neath on Sunday, was the first time that Heidi, Brad and Kloe all won gold medals at the same event.

Kloe was winner of the under-12 advanced kata event, Bradley won the under-14 advanced kata category and mum Heidi was triumphant in the ladies' kata section.

The Welsh karate league holds nine tournaments a year at venues around Wales with competitors ranked in their categories.

Vale Karate have taken the league by storm in their first year of involvement, with Georgia Hellerman, Christopher Slack, Emma Squire, Bradley Christoforato and Leah Copeland all leading their kata categories and Harrison Williams and Will Hellerman at the top of their kumite rankings.

Vale Karate is now preparing for the last league event of the year which takes place in Wrexham at the end of the month.

Shirley O'Donovan, Linda Lloyd and Sam Pascoe.

BRYNHILL ladies have held two successful events at the clubhouse within the last fortnight.

On Tuesday, November 1, the Winter Fayre proved to be popular. There were a number of quality stalls on show selling handbags, scarves, jewellery, cakes and a variety of pickled foods, charity Christmas cards for Cancer Research Wales, Christmas decorations, girls party clothes and a golf stand run by club pro Duncan Prior and helpers.

Two of the most eye-catching stalls had been created by two of our lady members.

Maria Gentile and staff once again this year brought along a selection of beautiful jewellery.

Florist Hilary West's display highlighted her creative flair.

On show was a range of festive decorations and numerous Christmas arrangements which could be ordered in a variety of sizes and colours.

Raffle tickets sold briskly for the large number of prizes. Equally popular was the raffle for the stunning iced cake.

dining room before leaving for light refreshments served by Becky and Ben.

On Friday, November 4, lady members who had played in the first, second and third teams and first team caddies at the Welsh national championships, enjoyed a delicious three-course dinner.

First team captain Sam Pascoe, second team captain Linda Lloyd and third team captain Shirley O'Donovan each spoke and gave a brief summary of their team's season.

Sam was particularly proud of her 'girls' who had narrowly failed to win their league.

The ladies were delighted, during the course of the evening, to welcome five members of the local lifeboat crew, and generously supported their bucket collection.

The three team captains seized the opportunity to be photographed alongside the attractive young men!

The evening ended on a high note with entertainment from second team member, Claire Herbert.

Cowbridge 4 Rhiwbina 5
ON a glorious autumn day, both Cowbridge under-9 teams played Rhiwbina in Cowbridge.

In the first game Cowbridge matched Rhiwbina try for try in the first half with Harri Howkins revelling in more possession than he has had for months, scoring both tries and showing what a capable player he can be.

The half time score was the result of excellent defence by Cowbridge for a period of almost five minutes.

Unfortunately, early in the second half, they turned over the ball on a couple of occasions conceding three very quick tries.

They continued to battle and scored two further tries through Jay Downes and Iwan-Thomas Bartle, both of whom were outstanding throughout.

This was a terrific performance by a team who passed the ball throughout and though this sometimes led to mistakes, it contributed to an excellent spectacle.

Special mention should go to Dewi Williams, Gruff Ford and Robbie Hawkins for performances that had improved beyond measure.

SQUAD:

Dewi Williams, Robbie Hawkins, Matthew Gilvear, James Gilvear, Iwan-Thomas Bartle, Jay Downes, Gruff Ford, Harri Howkins, Sam Coates and McKinley Parsons.

Cowbridge 3 Rhiwbina 5
In the second game, Cowbridge played a Rhiwbina team who had, last season, won a national under-8s tournament at Twickenham. This showed to begin with, as they were quicker in all aspects of play and their slick passing brought two first half tries, reflecting their superiority to that point.

The high point of the first half was an excellent break by Jake Williams which was concluded by a brilliant defensive tackle by a Rhiwbina player.

Though Rhiwbina scored the first try of the second half, again Cowbridge players showed great resolve by scoring the next two tries.

Rhys Williams scored the first and Charlie Locke the second. An intervening try from Rhiwbina interrupted Cowbridge's effort, but soon after Tom Johnson scored the home team's third try.

The main reason for the improvement was that the team started to pass the ball and with Rhys Williams out wide, gaps started to appear in the Rhiwbina defence.

A late Rhiwbina try gave the score an look that perhaps did not reflect how well Cowbridge had played, particularly in the second half.

No-one watching could have failed to have been impressed by the contributions made by two of the smallest Cowbridge players, Jake Williams and Charlie Locke, both of whom sustained bumps on a number of occasions through their unstinting efforts.

SQUAD:

Jake Williams, Jack Reilly, Aled Leitch, Harry Whittaker, David Harries, Ioan Davies, Tom Johnson, Elis Greenwood, Rhys Williams and Charlie Locke.

INTERACTIVE
dance mat sessions are helping teenagers to sharpen up their fitness levels at Ysgol Bro Morgannwg in Barry, as part of an innovative sports scheme.

The fleet-footed activity is the latest addition to the selection on offer to pupils at the school, thanks to the 5x60 scheme, which aims to get secondary school pupils in Wales active for at least 60 minutes, five days a week (5x60).

The dance mat sessions are proving popular with both boys and girls, and are a really fun way of getting fit.

Instructor Jenny Hunt said: "The dance mats are an excellent form of exercise. You don't need to be a dance expert to have a go, and as you move your feet on the mats to follow the instructions on the screen you soon get the hang of it."

"The dance mats are really versatile too, as they can also be used for loads of different games and activities as you get more confident, such as only dancing with your hands, or working to dance as a team."

The dance mats are all portable and are also being used in other Vale secondary schools, while they can be put through their paces every weekend during sessions held at Barry Leisure Centre.

Dance mats, fencing, dodgeball, cheerleading and trampolining are all among the activities that youngsters in the Vale are able to enjoy, in addition to the array of PE classes that pupils receive.

Chair of Sport Wales, Laura McAllister, said:

"Sport Wales' 5x60 scheme is proving to be really successful in tempting youngsters off the sidelines and into sport."

"Activities like dance, cheerleading and dodgeball are encouraging even the most reluctant to get involved and act as a gateway to other more traditional sports and an active lifestyle."

Cowbridge Karate Club fundraiser success

A BRILLIANT turn-out from members and spectators ensured that the CKJK demonstration and competition event at Cowbridge Leisure Centre was a great success.

The event was supported by The Mayor and Mayoress of Cowbridge with Llanblethian, who both have martial arts experience. Members of the thriving junior class provided a quality demonstration followed by sponsored press-ups, with black belt, Tim Goodman, completing an incredible 200 non-stop.

Kata (pre-defined patterns) and spirited kumite (fighting) competitions followed.

The event was concluded by a demonstration of Tameshiwari (power breaking) by the club Senseis (teachers) during which a large quantity of roofing tiles were destroyed!

Over £500 was raised for club funds and CKJK would like to thank everyone for their support.

Last month, CKJK had one of their twice-yearly training camps at the Welsh Institute of Sport in Cardiff.

Congratulations to Sempais Luke Padwick, Dan Hogan and Ben Husk on attaining their 1st Dan black belts. After over five years of practising karate, the trio underwent a gruelling weekend of physical training, examination of techniques and understanding, and assessment of coaching ability.

As expected, there was a thoroughly impressive display of commitment and determination from all students, many of whom attained new grades.

DINAS POWYS END UP ON THE WRONG SIDE OF A FIVE-GOAL THRILLER

AFTER totally dominating the first half and going in at the break with a two-goal lead, it looked a formality for Dinas to go on and win the game.

However, somehow they managed to squander all three points in a lacklustre second half performance, and their hosts must be praised for their never-say-die attitude.

Dinas were straight on the attack from the first whistle with Liam Jeremy adjudged just offside when in a good position, and Ricki Morgan was just wide with a shot received from Jeremy.

The visitors forced a succession of corners without any end product but were caught on the break when Jordan Morris beat the offside trap bursting through the middle, but experienced Dinas 'keeper Dave Burnett came off his line to narrow the angle and Morris shot wide.

The visitors finally got the breakthrough on 20 minutes when a long Steve Provis throw-in fell to Will Penikett, and he side-footed home from 15 yards, with Spencer Cutlan getting a hand to it.

Dinas doubled their tally with five minutes of the half remaining when Liam Jeremy delivered a pin-point cross from the right wing to find Jo Hinds and he headed home powerfully from six yards. As the half-time whistle blew, there looked to be only one winner after a very one-sided half.

For the first 15 minutes of the second half it was still Dinas calling the shots, with efforts just going wide from Jeremy, Hinds, who brought a good save from the 'keeper and from another long Provis throw-in Ricki Morgan volleyed over the bar.

Newcastle Emllyn gradually exerted some pressure of their own, so manager Mark Dunford brought on Paul McCarthy for the hard-working Hinds. However, with 15 minutes remaining, a defensive error let Jordan Morris in and he made no mistake for 2-1 from close range.

Just a minute later, the hosts were level after another defensive error let Emllyn substitute Robbie Jenkins in to lob Burnett and with a few minutes remaining, the hosts snatched the lead from a free kick and a well-placed header by Jake Harries.

Jeremy was then replaced by Joe Briscoe and Dinas had one further chance to salvage something when a scuffed Paul McCarthy shot was cleared off the line as time ran out.

Dinas are away again this Saturday when they travel to Caerau with a 2pm kick-off.

Squad: 1 Dave Burnett, 2 Steve Provis, 3 Chris Hynam(c), 4 Mike Lewis, 5 Dave Penikett, 6 Will Penikett(1), 7 Ricki Morgan, 8 Richard Yarr, 9 Jo Hinds(1), 10 Adam Raymond, 11 Liam Jeremy, 12 Rhys Davies, 14 Joe Briscoe, 15 Paul McCarthy. PK

The Bees have plenty of sting!

ON a crisp autumn morning at Barry RFC, the Bees entertained Fairwater in two games.

The first match saw the Bees take the game to the Cardiff side with strong running from the forwards and the backs throwing the ball around with pace.

J Pereria, Spencer and Stephen Williams showed plenty of strength in the tackle, forcing Fairwater on the back foot throughout the game.

E Watkins and C Bale managed to gain yards with very strong running to go over the gain line on a number of occasions, which in turn set up James and Miles Latham to finish off some really impressive moves. J Lang and Morgan Taylor held their line and managed to force turnover ball with fast reactions.

A special mention must go to Ethan Watkins, who scored a great try with a powerful run for his first try for the club.

Barry Bees ran out comfortable winners in the first match, which proves all their hard work has paid off in training.

In the second game, Barry fielded a team of power and pace. Fairwater, to their credit, never gave up in this game and really put their bodies on the line. The Bees, having a lot of fresh legs who ran and tackled for fun, were too much of a match for the visitors.

H Kelly, C Anderson, R Lloyd and James love nothing more than a tackle and a hit, while C Saunders, S Fahiya have pace to burn which on the day proved too much for Fairwater as the Vale team ran in try after try, with no reply, showing the strength in depth of this squad.

The promising thing to come out these games was the lads showed great ball skill, patterns of play and a desire to win which is from all the hard work they put into their training. LS

Skittles help to boost Rhian's NSPCC run

RIGHT:
The Wine Gums.

THE Park Hotel played host to a charity skittles tournament on November 6, organised by Barry runner Rhian Lees, who will be running the 2012 London Marathon in aid of the NSPCC.

Thirteen teams entered on the day for the chance to win £100 prize money, with £50 for the runners-up.

the Wine Gums (pictured) and the Merry-men.

After scoring the highest total of the day in the first round, the Merry-men collapsed spectacularly in the final as the Wine Gums demonstrated their skittling prowess with a final score of 85-62.

Merry-men captain

Andrew Cockram accepted the runners-up prize graciously, but immediately donated it straight back to the fundraising pot.

Wine Gums captain Cynthia Whyman followed suit, resulting in an amazing total for the day of £572.35.

All proceeds will go towards Rhian's fundraising target of £2,000.

If you would like to support Rhian in her 2012 London Marathon effort, you can donate via www.justgiving.com/RhianLees2012 or by text. Just text LEES80 and the amount you would like to donate to 70070.

Top of table clash a thriller

LAST weekend's VoG AFL Premier Division fixture list pitted the league's top two sides against each other, as AFC Colcot came head-to-head with last year's champions SW Dockers.

Both sides came into the match undefeated, with the Dockers having won every single one of their five games, and Colcot having only dropped two points this season following a draw against Park Villa. It was a hotly anticipated tie which didn't disappoint.

Both sides started the match with intent; the Dockers looking to increase their lead at the top of the table to five points, and Colcot looking to overtake their rivals at the summit of the table.

As a consequence, both teams spent the opening 15 minutes testing each other's resolve in an attempt to draw first blood - with both defences holding strong. Neither party would be happy to settle for a draw, and it was therefore only a matter of time before the deadlock was broken - and in the 19th minute, broken it was.

Some excellent inter-linking play down the right flank between Ryan Lawlor and Caine Wells saw the latter deftly thread the ball through to Daniel Lawlor inside the penalty area, who was upended as he tried to turn in on goal.

The referee wasted no time in pointing to the spot, and the resulting penalty was tucked away with confidence by central defender Shane Campbell, putting Colcot into the lead.

Colcot's joy was short-lived, though, as within minutes the Dockers levelled the scoreline with a controversial equaliser - as their winger was put in on goal with a long-ball. The goal appeared to be offside, but the protestations of a typically partisan Colcot crowd proved futile, as the referee allowed Dockers to play on for a tap-in.

With both sides now well and truly awake, Colcot immediately resumed their lead after the re-start following an electric burst of pace from team captain Teejay Caton.

His excellent play along the left wing fed central midfielder Anthony Jones inside the penalty area, who bundled the ball into the net to put his side back in the lead.

Inspired, Colcot then went even further ahead in the 33rd minute as Daniel Lawlor crossed for veteran Greg Williams to volley home from close range for 3-1.

Dockers were in no mood to roll over, though, and they were soon back in contention as another long-ball in the 37th minute allowed their attackers, with significant suspicions of offside, to break through the Colcot defence to narrow the scoreline at 3-2.

In the 40th minute, AFC Colcot turned the screw on their rivals as they netted once more, to widen their lead.

Some excellent defensive play by Greg Williams, whose outstanding performance would eventually earn him man-of-the-match, saw his long pass along the flank release Teejay Caton in on goal.

One-on-one with the Dockers keeper and with plenty of time to consider his options, Caton decided to place the ball over his adversary's head - his excellent finish taking the scoreline to 4-2.

Remarkably, there would be no further goals in the second half, as both sides dug deep to stamp their authority over the fixture.

Despite the Dockers' best efforts, though, it would prove to be Colcot's day as their defensive spirit, inspired by outstanding performances from Shane Campbell and Connor Caton, held firm to take them to the summit of the VoG AFL premier division.

Man of the match: Greg Williams. DS

Welcome to the future ... according to Volvo

MOTORING with TIM SAUNDERS

THE headline above is the first thought that springs to mind on stepping inside the XC60 T5 SE R Design because it's fitted with a sophisticated and intelligent cruise control that literally thinks for the driver.

It ensures that this crossover travels at the right speed and keeps the correct distance behind the car in front. This sees it braking and speeding up of its own accord.

It's not infallible though, because as I found, really torrential rain resulted in an unnerving 'blocked radar' warning appearing on the dash, instantly cutting out cruise control.

This was the worst rain I have driven in and it's unfortunate that it highlighted this glitch. Once the rain eased the system worked again.

At times, the radars were also a little too sensitive for my liking. For instance, when in the outside lane of the motorway the sensors became aware of vehicles in the middle lane, resulting in the XC60 slowing down when there was no need – making for a jerky ride and frustrating performance at times, but the idea is a good one that just needs a little improving, in my opinion.

Aside from this, the Volvo handled the very unsympathetic weather battering with ease, its height ensuring that it could tackle widespread flooding.

In the XC60, Volvo has attempted to combine off-road ruggedness and practicality with sporty styling and safety. It has pretty much achieved this, too. The stylish vehicle is spacious, with a modern cabin, is family-friendly and less bulky looking than the larger XC90.

On the road there is an excellent ride, making it a good long distance companion.

However, on shorter journeys it is noticeable that the automatic box, which feeds powers to all four wheels, is a little hesitant at times.

The R-Design gives a sportier chassis, stiffer dampers, anti-roll bars and a colour-matching body kit.

Volvo's XC60 was launched in 2008, at the same time as the Audi Q5. The Swedish SUV has arguably helped Volvo shrug off its image as a maker of cars for old men. It has reintroduced the manufacturer to the younger drivers it once appealed to with the cool-looking P1800 – synonymous with TV's The Saint – in the '60s. Overall, it's a well-built vehicle suitable for an active family, seeking style and practicality and if Volvo could improve its clever cruise control it would be almost perfect.

Model tested XC60 T5 SE Premium Powershift T5 (240bhp) R Design 5d Powershift (introduced 2010) six-speed auto. Price: £35,000

New price range: £28,300 - £41,260; Economy: 33mpg; Engine: 2-litre turbo petrol; 0-60mph: 7.8secs; Top speed: 130mph.

Game of two halves for Kenfig RFC

IN soccer parlance, this was the proverbial game of two halves with Glynneath winning the first half and the Mules the second.

Glynneath elected to play down the slope in the first half and went on the attack but Kenfig Hill held them out and took the lead through a penalty by outside-half Rhodri Clark.

Glynneath came straight back with a penalty by their outside-half Jack O'Reilly, and then strung a slick passing move together which saw scrum-half James Pike score near the posts, O'Reilly converting.

The rest of the half was best forgotten by Kenfig Hill with a series of handling errors giving the home side a strong advantage, and although they pressed hard they could not penetrate the Mules' defence.

Kenfig Hill gave away a series of stupid penalties, mainly for talking back to the referee and O'Reilly never missed a kick, putting over four.

This gave a half time score of Kenfig Hill 3 Glynneath 22.

Coach Nigel Evans expressed his disappointment in his half time talk and the Mules were a different side in the second half, dominating proceedings.

Hooker Karl Davies scored a fine individual try which was converted by Clark, who then added a penalty.

Kenfig Hill crossed the line moments later but the player unfortunately stepped into touch, inches from the line. From this point on it was continuous attacking against a tiring home outfit.

Kenfig Hill put together a superb passing move which saw winger Matthew Tossell score in the corner.

From the kick-off, Glynneath gained a kickable penalty but elected to go for touch to end the game.

Final score: Kenfig Hill 18 Glynneath 22.

For Kenfig Hill, hooker Karl Davies gave a man of the match display and wing forward Jason Davies played well, with the rest of the pack giving a gritty performance against a strong pack.

Brackla.

The game was played in almost perfect conditions and from the first whistle, both teams threw the ball around looking to attack from all corners of the pitch.

The Mules scored first when makeshift outside-half Lewis Morgan sliced through the Brackla defence to score a try close to the posts, which he converted himself.

Brackla then scored a try immediately from the kick-off following a fine blindside break.

The Mules continued to pile on the pressure and Lewis Morgan kicked a close range penalty to extend the Mules lead.

Brackla hit back with a converted try following a deft chip and catch which made the score Brackla 12 Kenfig Hill 10.

The Mules then stepped up a gear for the rest of the half and scored further tries from flankers Dai Dent and Matthew Howe, both converted by Morgan and a fine individual effort from ever-improving winger Jonathan Steggle.

The second half was a scrappy affair with both teams struggling to keep possession and with far too many indiscretions at the break-down. The Mules scored one further try – albeit in rather bizarre circumstances – centre Alex Pearce cut through the Brackla defence and dived over the try line unopposed, walked back to hand the ball to outside-half Lewis Morgan for the conversion, at which point the referee informed Pearce that he hadn't grounded the ball.

Morgan then sprinted over the line to claim the try himself. A definite candidate for 'What happens next'!

Brackla kicked a penalty and scored a fine long range individual try from their substitute winger, leaving the final score Brackla 22 Kenfig Hill 34.

Pick of the bunch for the Mules were back row forwards Dai Dent and Matthew Bater, who continually crossed the gain line with their powerful running and Lewis Morgan who, playing out of position, gave a faultless display at outside-half. The coaching staff were also very impressed by the work rate and commitment of substitute Keiron Tomlin.

Mules Man of the Match: Jonathan Steggle.

SISTERS PROVE TOO STRONG FOR PENCOED RFC

PENCOED opened well, moving the ball wide at every opportunity, before captain Ken Morris straightened onto a pass from outside half Marc Davies to split the home defence and feed left wing Richie Samuel who sped over in the corner.

Davies converted from the touchline but after 18 minutes Seven Sisters drew level, their pack mauling over from close range.

Soon after centre Mike Smith kicked a 35 metre penalty for a 10-7 lead. Pencoed returned to the attack and full back Tom Cross, picking a good angle, almost scored, brought down metres out.

Seven Sisters outside half Kyle Davies then put in a fine clearance to half way. The Pencoed pack took the ball against the head at the next scrum before Cross kicked Pencoed back into the home 22, only to lose the resultant line out in a prime position.

The scoreline of 10-7 reflected a fairly even first half.

The second half opened with a number of errors from Pencoed allowing the Blaendulais valley side a foothold in their favoured 22, before increasing their lead to 15-7 with a try halfway out.

Pencoed then suffered some bad luck which was to ultimately affect the final scoreline. Firstly scrum half Lyndon Griffiths, who had done well on his return to 1st XV duties left the field with a shoulder injury, and within minutes emergency scrum half Jeff Hobbs limped off.

This no doubt disrupted the Pencoed side with wing Samuel switching to scrum half and back row forward Aaron Halse having to play at centre because of the further positional change.

The home side from then on were to take full advantage and raised their game scoring a further three tries to run out comfortable 34-7 winners.

On Saturday Pencoed host league leaders Maesteg Harlequins at the Recreation Ground, kick-off 2.30pm.

Still unbeaten
The 2nd XV continued their unbeaten start to the season at Llantwit Major, winning 38-20.

Tries came from Stein Jones (2) Ashley Halse, Hywel Price, Robert Spear, a try and conversion from Liam Halse, with Mike Rowe adding three conversions.

The team head the Mid-Glamorgan Division 1 Table with seven wins and a draw in their eight matches played to date. On Saturday they entertain Nantyllyon in a league match, 2.30pm kick-off.
